When some incredible detectives, support staffers, community partners and I started the Child Abuse & Family Violence Summit in 2000, I had no idea it would grow into the internationally recognized conference it has become. Last year, we had over 800 attendees and volunteers from across the United States and around the world.

Back in 2000, I was working child-abuse and child-homicide investigations as a detective for the Clackamas County Sheriff’s Office. Through that assignment, I began to realize that these weren’t isolated cases — that instead we were facing a hidden epidemic of violence and abuse.

I saw that — like a disease — child abuse and domestic violence do not distinguish between rich or poor, rural or urban. We were as likely to find it in a posh suburb as on a remote farm or in a run-down apartment complex.

At first, it seemed like an overwhelming problem. Then I realized that the only way we were ever going to make a difference was if everyone worked together: law enforcement and prosecutors, social workers and physicians, protective services and educators.

We needed to build those connections, and then we needed to make sure that we were using the best, most up-to-date techniques and ideas to tackle this problem. To me, it seemed like we needed to have a Multidisciplinary conference, where these folks could get together and get to know each other, and hear from the world’s top experts — and that’s how the Summit got its start.

That first year, we had 338 attendees, and we held it at a Holiday Inn in my hometown of Wilsonville, about 20 miles south of Portland. It’s grown ever since, but that philosophy is still the same.

In 2004, I was honored to be elected Sheriff of Clackamas County, and I’ve never stopped thinking about those victims of domestic violence and child abuse, suffering all around us behind closed doors — unseen, unheard, without a patrol car or an ambulance racing to help them, sirens wailing.

During my campaign, I pledged that the Sheriff’s Office would protect everyone, but especially the most vulnerable among us: our children, and others who find themselves without a voice.

That is the cause that we gather each year to advance, bringing light into the shadows and hope for the suffering. Thank you so much for the difficult work you do. You have my sincere appreciation and gratitude. Working together, we really can make a difference.

Dear Child Abuse and Family Violence Summit Participants:

Welcome to the 18th Annual Child Abuse and Family Violence Summit in Portland, Oregon, along the scenic Columbia River. The Summit is proud to present yet another year of notable speakers — from law-enforcement, investigation, interviewing and treatment professionals to legal and medical experts, as well as some who have been personally affected by child abuse or family violence.

This year we continue with our theme, “The Power of One in Collaboration with Others,” as it encompasses our goal of collectively working with all the dedicated professionals to broaden your knowledge in multiple areas. Our goal is also to increase each individual discipline’s understanding of other agencies’ roles and responsibilities to prevent child abuse and family violence as we work together to protect each child.

The Summit would not be the success it is without the help of our dedicated colleagues and volunteers who work tirelessly throughout the year to bring this conference to the Northwest. We would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every one of them for their continued support.

We hope you enjoy your time here in Portland, our beautiful City of Roses, and hope you leave The Summit with the latest information that you can share with your colleagues and use to help victims of child abuse and family violence. If there is anything we can do to make your time here more pleasurable, please do not hesitate to ask.

Be safe out there,

The 2017 Child Abuse and Family Violence Summit Planning Committee

Craig Roberts, Sheriff

Patrick Bray, Detective
Paul Wade, Detective
Jon Campbell, Patrol Deputy
Jennie Smith, DHS Supervisor
Joan Radonich, MDT Coordinator
Joyce Nagy, Forensic Artist
Cory Jewell-Jensen, MS
Helen Bicart, Retired Police Chief
April Everist, Human Services Assistant
Sue Skinner, MD, Medical Director
NAME TAGS WILL BE REQUIRED FOR ENTRY TO ALL SESSIONS
There will be no exceptions to this policy. Please display name badge in a visible place to assist room monitors. Please do not hassle, argue with, or otherwise bother our volunteer room monitors about this standard conference requirement.

CONFERENCE NOTEBOOKS
We are unable to replace lost or misplaced conference notebooks. Please put your name on your conference notebook. If you find a conference notebook, please turn it in to Registration staff. Only one conference notebook is provided for each registration fee.

COURTESY TO SPEAKERS AND FELLOW CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS
Please be seated promptly for the general sessions as well as the workshops as a courtesy to the speakers, as well as to others who may be distracted by the entrance of latecomers. Time is limited; the faculty has put in much time and effort toward preparation for their sessions, and request that audience members arrive on time so they can start promptly.

KEEP PAGERS / CELL PHONES SILENT
Please keep pagers and cell phones in “silent mode” to minimize disruptions to speakers and other conference participants. Please do not carry on cell-phone conversations in the sessions.

NO AUDIO/VISUAL RECORDING BY CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS
Due to privacy and copyright concerns, no audio and/or visual recording of this conference is allowed.

LOST/FOUND ITEMS
Check with our Registration staff if you have lost an item to see if it has been turned in. If you find an item (e.g., a coat, sweater or notebook), please turn it in to our Registration staff.

CERTIFICATES OF ATTENDANCE
On Monday, April 17, 2017, all Summit participants will receive an email asking for their valued feedback on the Summit, the program schedule, and the conference venue — as well as suggestions for future Summits. We value your time and responses. Once your feedback survey is completed, you will receive another email with a link to your Certificate of Attendance and instructions on how to print your document.

CONTINUING EDUCATION CREDIT/UNITS
We are proud to offer Continuing Education Credit through the following accrediting boards and organizations:
• National Board of Certified Counselors
• National Association of Social Workers
• Oregon Department of Public Safety Standards and Training (DPSST) credit
• Oregon State Bar minimum continuing education credit
• Physicians: A certificate of attendance will be provided and may be submitted for category 2 credits. Each physician should claim only those hours of credit that he/she actually spent in the educational activity.

Plan to stop by the Continuing Education table at the Summit to sign up for your profession’s appropriate credits DAILY from 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

SPEAKER EVALUATIONS
Please take the time to complete individual session speaker evaluations. We cannot over-emphasize the importance your comments play in what speakers and topics are considered in planning future conferences.

Please feel free to ask any of the staff or volunteers for assistance. We will be happy to help in any way we can.

5:00 – 8:00 p.m. • Jantzen Beach Bar & Grill

Join your colleagues at the Jantzen Beach Bar & Grill located in the Red Lion as we welcome you to the 18th Annual Summit. Enjoy the casual atmosphere and the majestic view of the Columbia River.

Appetizers, entertainment and a no-host bar will be available.

Kristi’s Massage

9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Kristi Ceciliani, local Licensed Massage Therapist, will be on-site outside the ballroom foyer providing chair massages for $1 per minute. Schedule your appointment as soon as you can as her sessions fill quickly.

Kristi will also be on-site Wednesday and Thursday, April 12-13 from 9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Self-Defense Basics

Paul Wade and Tina Tappouni

Glisan Room • Two sessions:

• 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. OR
• 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. (Part 1 of 2-day session)

Students will be taught basic but extremely effective skills to counter attacks from every angle — including ground attacks. The class will be led by certified self-defense instructors Detective Paul Wade and Tina Tappouni. These skills they will teach are derived from Krav Maga — the Israeli military fighting technique with a proven combat record — and Brazilian Jiu Jitsu, the premier ground-fighting and ground self-defense art in the world. With these new skills, students will gain the confidence they need to survive instead of being victimized. No prior experience is required, and the class is open to all Summit attendees.

Class limited to 12 participants. You will need to sign-up to participate at the Summit Information Table in the Lower Level Foyer of the Red Lion Hotel on the River.

This class will be repeated on Wednesday, from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. There will also be a two-part evening class taught Tuesday, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m., and Wednesday, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. Participants for the evening classes are encouraged to participate both Tuesday and Wednesday.
Jackson Michelson concert for Summit attendees
7:00 – 10:00 p.m. • Grand Ballroom
Sponsored by the Oregon State Sheriff’s Association, rising country music star Jackson Michelson will be performing exclusively for Summit attendees in the Red Lion Hotel on the River’s Grand Ballroom. This is a performance you won’t want to miss.

About Jackson:
Raised in Corvallis, Oregon, Jackson Michelson kicked off his country career on the West Coast, carving out a sound that blended the rootsy twang of the American South with the sunny, feel-good spirit of the Pacific Coast. Nashville — the official capital of country music — lay 2,300 miles to the southeast, but Michelson focused on his home turf first, building an audience of West Coast fans who were drawn to his high-energy shows and relatable songwriting. By the time he did move to Nashville, he’d already spent years on the road, growing his fanbase show-by-show and earning a record contract with Curb Records in the process. Now, with a record deal under his belt, Michelson is prepping for the next phase of his career. There are new shows to play, new songs to be written and new opportunities to explore. But he’s still the boy from Corvallis, happy to sing about “The Good Life” — a life he’s built himself, show by show and song by song — to an audience that continues to grow.

NOTE: Conference badge is required for entry — no exceptions. A limited number of guest tickets are available. Please see registration staff for availability.

Mindful Movement for Any Body
Sara Taggart, RYT-200
6:30 - 7:30 a.m. • Glisan Room

“Mindfulness” is defined as the practice of paying attention to the present moment on purpose, non-judgmentally, and with compassion.

Hello? What that does that mean and what am I supposed to do?

Good news! “Showing up” is half the battle. Join Sara Taggart, RYT-200, Hatha yoga teacher (and Child Abuse Prevention Specialist), for an hour of mindful movement designed to support your self-care aspirations in a format that is safe for any body. We will move through poses in a purposeful progression, building heat from within, lengthening and strengthening muscles from head to toe and core to fingertips. Beginners welcome. Bring your mat or borrow one if needed. This class will be repeated on Friday, April 14.

Downtown Portland Pub Crawl
Buses leave the hotel at 5:30 p.m and 6:30 p.m.

Join us for a night of fun, relaxation and networking at our traditional Pub Crawl. Free bus transportation will be provided from the hotel to the brewery district — where we will be within walking distance of a great many pubs and eateries for which Portland is famous!

The first bus will leave promptly at 5:30 p.m. Thursday for downtown Portland, and the second bus at 6:30 p.m., from outside the Grand Ballroom entrance to the Red Lion Hotel on the River. Buses will be returning to the hotel beginning at 8:00 p.m., and again at 9:00, 10:00 and 11:00 p.m.

Sign-up is available at the Summit Information Table, Lower Level Foyer, on the first day of the Summit. Spaces on the buses go quickly, so don’t forget to reserve yours!

Vine Gogh Artist Bar
6:00 – 8:00 p.m. • Coffee Bar

Join the fun on Thursday night, April 13 from 6 to 8 p.m. as Vine Gogh Artist Bar takes you through the step-by-step process of re-creating their popular “Starry Hood” painting on 11x14 canvas. Vine Gogh has given a discounted rate of $25 per person. All materials (canvas, brushes, easels, paint, aprons to wear) are provided in the price. Vine Gogh’s owner Jenny will be leading you through every step of the process until you have finished with your own masterpiece to bring home. Wine will be available to purchase to get the full experience (and have some liquid encouragement help). Music, painting, and wine will provide the ultimate fun for an event you won’t forget! Pre-registration and payment required to secure your spot! Register at our Information Tables in the Lower Level Foyer by noon on Thursday, April 13.

Kristi’s Massage
9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Kristi Ceciliani, local Licensed Massage Therapist, will be on-site outside the ballroom foyer providing chair massages for $1 per minute. Schedule your appointment as soon as you can as her sessions fill quickly.

KEYNOTE:
There's a Dream That We Dream
How the World Should Be…
Patty Wetterling

Patty will share lessons learned about child safety following her son’s abduction.

Keeping kids safe is an adult responsibility. It is not the child’s responsibility to not get kidnapped! We need to watch who is watching our children and give children the age-appropriate tools to know what to do when then have questions. We also need to teach our children about relationships and respectful boundaries so that they don’t grow up to become someone who would exploit another.

At the end of the presentation, participants will have an increased understanding of child abduction and exploitation and how to replace fear with knowledge; know how to talk to children about personal safety; and learn where to find resources to help and share the hope for a world in which children have the right to grow up safe and follow their dreams.

Michael Devlin Case Study
William (Bill) Carson

This workshop examines the life, history and psychological motives of Michael Devlin, one of the most notorious child kidnappers of the past decade. Following his convictions, Devlin was interviewed in-depth separately by Chief Carson and two FBI profilers. The presentation includes material learned from these interviews — with audio of Devlin discussing his childhood, his sexual attraction to young boys, his abduction fantasies, and the eventual kidnappings of Shawn Hornbeck in 2002 and Ben Ownby in 2007.

A Window into the Life of a Child:
How Photo-Documentation and Comprehensive Assessment Can Tell the Rest of the Story
Carol L. Chervenak, MD

Understanding and then accurately communicating the severity and extent of a child’s experience of maltreatment is challenging. Karly’s Law requires the photo-documentation of injuries. However, photography has the potential to capture more of the essence of those experiences — by documenting details of the child’s living space and the various hazards that children are exposed to in their environment; and by more effectively assessing the proposed mechanisms of injury to children. Through case presentations, this session will explore the value of careful photo-documentation and comprehensive assessment in telling the whole story.

Juvenile Sex Offenders: A Challenge for the Team
Dan Powers, LCSW

Juvenile sex offenders pose an interesting challenge to the Multidisciplinary team. This workshop is intended for interviewers, police officers, CPS workers, medical personnel, family court workers, attorneys, judges, social workers, therapists and anyone else dealing with juvenile sex offenders. This workshop will explore the dynamics and challenges juvenile sex offenders bring to your caseload. We will review types of juvenile sex offenders and will suggest a consistent approach in dealing with them — from investiga-
1D A Pebble in the Pond: Factors in Multi-Generational Childhood Sexual Abuse Victimization
Tamara Hillard, LICSW
This presentation explores the phenomenon of “second generation” child sexual abuse victimization. Discussion will include common perceptions and understandings of how past childhood victimization can impact on the likelihood of — and response to — a child in the next generation being sexually abused. This presentation addresses psychological factors, incidence rates, and creating a window of therapeutic opportunity amidst the fallout, for both mother and child.

Learning objectives include:
1. Identifying areas of focus in helping a parent who has a history of child sexual abuse to deal with the dual stressors of their own abuse, and the abuse of their child;
2. Identifying three “thought errors” that, if not exposed, can negatively affect recovery for both the parent and their child; and
3. Identifying ways to help parents be proactive in supporting their children while also creating a safer normalcy in the family.

1E Dynamics of Child Sexual Assault Victims and Meeting Untrue Defenses
Mary-Ann Burkhart, JD
The dynamics of victimization most often seen in our child victims give way to many of the untrue defenses faced by child abuse professionals during the investigation and trial of child sexual abuse cases. This workshop will reinforce those often-seen common behaviors of child victims of sexual abuse, highlight the most often-seen defenses in child sexual abuse cases, and show how to overcome them during the investigation and trial stage.

By the end of this workshop, participants will:
1. Identify common behaviors and dynamics most often seen in child victims of sexual assault;
2. Explore the most common untrue defenses faced during the investigation and prosecution stage that involves those behaviors and dynamics; and
3. Discuss ways to overcome those untrue defenses.

1F Hands Are Not for Hitting: The Impact of Domestic Violence on Children
Jan Langbein
Domestic violence (DV) is a devastating social problem that impacts all segments of society. Although awareness regarding the pervasiveness and effects of family violence is increasing, the understanding of the ramifications of the effects of domestic violence often focuses on the primary victims. Studies indicate that millions of children witness the abuse of a parent or caregiver each year. Research also shows that DV may be the number-one indicator of child abuse and neglect. This workshop explores the effect that witnessing DV has on children who live in homes where family violence occurs.

Learning objectives include learning to understand the dynamics of DV. Participants will hear about the “Stages of Change” and how to identify which stage a victim is in. They will learn typical behaviors of victims/child witnesses, types of abusers, and DV statistics. Participants will be able to effectively work with families experiencing DV. Participants will understand the cycle of abuse — and learn the right questions to ask victims/child witnesses. Resiliency will also be discussed. At the conclusion, participants will have increased knowledge of the effects of DV on children, and will learn about maladaptive coping mechanisms of children affected by abuse and how the three types of stress (positive, tolerable, toxic) influence development. This session will be repeated Wednesday from 10:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

1G ACE Study: Adverse Childhood Experiences: Identify, Intervene and Interrupt
Jane Straub
Experiences in childhood matter. Numerous research studies have shown how childhood stress and trauma can impact adult health. The ACE study is the largest study investigating the health and social effects of negative childhood experiences. Now that we have the research, what can we do about it? The cycle of violence, generational poverty and abuse, homelessness, substance abuse, incarceration, perpetration and victimization of violence are all related to adverse childhood experiences (ACEs). Strategies such as identification and assessment, reducing risk and exposure, and nurturing resiliency and skill-building are effective interventions. Changing the negative course that many children are on is our best way to prevent abuse in future generations. This presentation will increase your knowledge of trauma — and provide ways to work with children, families and communities to reduce the impact of trauma.

Connecting the Dots: Intersections of Violence and Discrimination
Jeffrey Bucholtz, MA
This is an advanced discussion for those familiar with the topics of oppression and violence. This workshop provides an opportunity to more deliberately delve into conversations about the intersections between oppressions — and what that means for those doing activist, educational, or advocacy work in the violence-prevention fields. Participants will explore the power of language; implicit biases; and the impact of discrimination, privilege and dehumanization on perpetrators, victims, and bystanders.

Introduction to Open Source Digital Forensics
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott
Autopsy® is an automated environment that has the core analysis features needed by law enforcement to conduct an investigation of digital media, such as hard drives, memory cards, or mobile devices. Autopsy® has been developed by Basis Technology and an open-source community. Autopsy® is available free of charge. Students will receive an introduction to the software and learn how they can utilize it during their investigations to assist with the recovery of digital evidence. Attendees should have a basic understanding of computer forensics.

Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

Childhood Fall Injuries: Accidental vs. Inflicted
Jim Holler
Falls are the leading cause of unintentional injuries for children. Nearly one-third of all fall-related visits to hospital emergency rooms are children ages 14 and under. More than half of all non-fatal injuries to children are associated with falls, and falls are the leading cause of nursery product-related injuries. The severity of a fall-related injury is determined by the distance of the fall and the landing surface. Head injuries are associated with the majority of severe injuries and deaths resulting from falls. Because falls are associated with a child’s curiosity and development of motor skills, children ages 10 and under are at the greatest risk of fall-related death and injury. This workshop will focus on identifying non-accidental fall injuries on children — and will emphasize the specific techniques that can be used by investigators in the assessment, investigation, and reconstruction of injuries sustained from a fall.

Myths of the Hymen
Antoinette Laskey, MD, MPH, MBA
This basic sexual abuse talk will cover important concepts and myth-busting about sexual abuse. This session will have some graphic photos that are necessary for the understanding of the topic, but will be limited to what is necessary for the specific audience. At the conclusion of this session, participants will be able to recognize common myths about child sexual abuse and the actual realities regarding each myth; describe how and when a sexual abuse/assault exam occurs; and identify normal and abnormal findings in the female genital exam. The intended audience includes medical personnel, law enforcement, CPS, and attorneys who may be involved in cases of sexual abuse.

2C
Working with Non-Offending Parents in Child Sexual Abuse Cases
Dan Powers, LCSW
This workshop is intended for interviewers, police officers, CPS workers, probation officers, attorneys, judges, social workers, therapists, and anyone else dealing with abused children and their non-offending parents. It will review types of non-offending parents and suggest a consistent approach in dealing with them, from investigation through ongoing treatment. Your actions can “make or break it” for the next professional dealing with the parent. We will discuss the range of emotions professionals may feel, as well as the “dos and don’ts” of dealing with non-offending parents — emphasizing the need for a collaborative, consistent approach when dealing with them.

Objectives:
1. Develop a framework for empathy for non-offending parents.
2. Gain an understanding of the dynamics and types of non-offending parent.
3. Have a consistent approach in dealing with non-offending parents.

2D
Tamara Hillard, LICSW
Based on the “evidence-based practice” of Trauma Focused-Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, this presentation provides active, creative and relationship-based intervention ideas for working with sexually abused children. Hillard offers real ideas on how to engage children in therapy, and discusses the hidden beliefs and misperceptions that can follow a child into adulthood and limit their healing.

Topics will include how to engage parents and help them to be support agents for their children, while also creating an atmosphere of trust and acceptance in the child-therapist relationship.

this presentation apart from others — and engages the therapist and clients in immediate cognitive reframing. The use of case examples, active and usable techniques, and a focus on the “clinician as change agent” through attitude and humor — and creativity in treatment — will be emphasized. Resiliency skills and practical safety/prevention ideas are highlighted.

Objectives include:
1. Identifying 3 techniques to use in helping a child begin to discuss and work through their sexual abuse history;
2. Identifying 3 “thought-errors,” which if not exposed can negatively affect recovery; and
3. Identifying ways to help parents be proactive in supporting children while also creating a safer “normalcy” in the family.

It Takes a Team: Successfully Prosecuting a Case with a Recanting Victim
Mary-Ann Burkhart, JD

Recantation is common in cases involving children as victims and witnesses. Children recant for a multitude of reasons, and recantation does not signal the end of a prosecution. This workshop will delve into the most common reasons for recantation, how to avoid and prevent recantation, and how to deal with it if it occurs in your case, even if it occurs on the witness stand.

By the end of this workshop, participants will:
1. Identify the most common reasons for recantation, in order to assess their cases for the possibility that it may occur;
2. Explore ways in which we may avoid and prevent recantation through the way we handle our prosecutions; and
3. Efforts to be undertaken once recantation does occur.

Stalking: A Pattern of Behaviors That Cause Fear
Jane Straub

When the word “stalking” is searched in Google, quite a few results will try to compare stalking to romance, many minimizing the harm and others confusing harassment with protection. Our culture uses terms such “stalking,” “creeping/creep” and “hanging around” to normalize this real, extremely harmful and scary criminal act. This presentation will provide information on stalking, including; the definition, statistics and prevalence; technology; stalking’s connection to domestic violence and sexual assault; and its link to other crimes, such as vandalism, identity theft and harassment.

Jacob’s Hope Lives
Patty Wetterling

Patty will describe the dynamics of child abduction and sexual exploitation and how they affect community. She will share her life commitment to fight for a world where children have the right to grow up safe and follow their dreams. At the end of the presentation, participants will:
1. Have an increased understanding of child abduction and the impact it has on community;
2. Learn about resources for investigation, family support, prevention and community healing; and
3. Share the hope for a better, safer world for children.

Understanding the Relationship Between Child Pornography and Hands-On Offenders
Michael Sullivan

In the last decade, the trading of child pornography has exploded via the Internet. It is not uncommon to see 3,000 to 6,000 IP addresses per state, per month, involved in the trading of child pornography. With this volume of activity, how can law enforcement make sure their resources are being used to identify hands-on offenders and rescue children currently being sexually exploited? This workshop will look at the studies conducted by Dr. Michael Bourke and Dr. Joe Sullivan — and how the results of their work may aid law enforcement in rescuing children. We will look at several factors that may help identify subjects who are currently sexually abusing children.

Twitter Investigations
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott

Twitter has quickly become the go-to medium for today’s instant communication, proven by the fact that there are 5,000 tweets per second. Twitter searching will be introduced to allow searching for Twitter profiles, tweet keywords and hashtags — and even searching for tweets from a particular latitude and longitude. These Twitter searching techniques will include both standard and hidden Boolean operators, ensuring that investigators have access to the best possible evidence.

Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

Facebook 101: What Investigators Need to Know
Emily Vacher

In this session, Vacher — a Director of Facebook’s Trust & Safety team — will present the challenges Facebook faces in operating the world’s largest social network. She will discuss the latest safety and privacy controls available to prevent and reduce risks for users of the site. Lastly, she will detail how Facebook can assist law enforcement in ongoing investigations.

Jim Holler

The very essence of “torture” is secretive and hidden. The World Health Organization’s definition of torture is “extended exposure to violence and deprivation.” Children can suffer repeated or prolonged exposure to violence or deprivation — tortured at the hands of their caregivers, most not discovered or reported due to being locked in rooms, in cages, in cribs, on beds and in basements, chained to poles, starved, and physically and sexually abused.

On some occasions, both law enforcement and CPS have been at the home on unrelated incidents, completely unaware of the child or children being tortured in the house. This training will better prepare first responders, law enforcement, child protective services, fire and EMS, juvenile and adult probation, mental health, and in-home health professionals how to recognize possible signs of children being tortured inside the residence. There are many instances in which team members hold what might seem to be minor details; however, when shared, those details can paint a clearer picture of what may be happening in the residence where this child is being tortured — thus prompting a recovery of the child.

3B Sentinel Injuries: Recognizing the Canary in the Coal Mine Before It’s Too Late
Antoinette Laskey, MD, MPH, MBA

This session focuses on specific injuries that can be seen without special equipment or training, what they mean, and how to appropriately react when an infant has them in order to prevent further injury or death. This talk has been found to be helpful in understanding the extremely serious consequences of failing to appropriately respond to what appear to be relatively minor injuries in infants. At the conclusion of this session, participants will be able to identify “sentinel injuries” in the context of possible child abuse; recognize the necessary evaluation that should happen after a sentinel injury is identified; and describe the possible outcomes associated with sentinel injuries.

3C LEAD OR LEAD NOT. THERE IS NO TRY. How Not to be Seen as the Darth Vader of Your Organization
Dan Powers, LCSW

Do you want to be known as the Yoda or Darth to your staff? Would you like to convey wisdom or deliver fear as part of your leadership style? You cannot deny that Darth Vader’s leadership style gets results — but Force-choking may not be the best way to lead your team. As leaders in “our world,” we are faced with the challenge of needing to influence many different types of people. The team looks to you to lead with knowledge, compassion and empathy. You have a choice: Use the Force or go to the Dark Side.

Objectives:
1. Be aware of the qualities of a great leader;
2. Learn how you can be a great leader; and
3. Develop a plan to advance your leadership potential.

3D Real Treatment with Real Kids: Treatment for Sexually Abused Children (Part 2 of 2)
Tamara Hillard, LICSW

3E Search Warrants and Interviews: Practical Tips for Getting and Keeping Critical Evidence
Chuck Mickley, DA, and Amanda Nadell, DA

This presentation will focus on two significant aspects of child abuse investigations — search warrants and interviews. In the first part, the presenters will cover updates to the law for search warrants, including the recent Mansor decision and its implications on applying for search warrants in child abuse cases. They will also explore ideas around creative use of search warrants in child abuse investigations. In the second part, they will review the appellate case law on “compelling circumstances” to answer the question of whether there is any such thing as a “non-custodial interview” under current Oregon law.

3F Domestic Violence and Lethality Assessment
Jane Straub

Domestic violence is pervasive in our communities, with 1 in 4 females experiencing abuse at the hands of a partner during her lifetime. This presentation will discuss abusive behaviors, the cycle of violence, barriers to safety, and the emotional, physical and mental impact on the victim. This session will provide an introduction to and discussion of lethality assessments. Working with and engaging survivors to identify escalation and threats to safety are crucial in reducing the chance of homicide in DV cases. The goals of the presentation are to increase your knowledge of domestic violence — enabling you to identify abusive relationships, improve your understanding of lethality, and engage survivors in safety planning and strategies to leave abusive relationships safely.

3G Women Who Molest Children: Offender Typologies
William (Bill) Carson

This workshop begins with findings that were learned from in-depth interviews with 18 women who had been convicted of molesting children, but goes well beyond that to include cases from across the nation, as well as data from other recently published material on this topic. Chief Carson will discuss past and current offender typologies for female child molesters, including his five distinct typologies, which were first published in 2006.

The Pop Culture Paradox: Media Literacy, Advocacy and Sexual Violence
Jeffrey Bucholtz, MA

The stories that we tell about ourselves and each other through popular culture are a powerful tool for not only unraveling our cultural construct and understanding the roots of violence, but are also critical tools in how to better understand and assist survivors. In this stimulating presentation, participants will explore how popular culture impacts our ideas about gender, health, agency, happiness, relationships, self-concept, sex, and sexual violence. This presentation will also explore experiences of male victims of sexual assault.

Become a Google Jedi: Save Yourself from Information Overload
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott

This hands-on computer lab will teach students how to effectively use Google to filter search results to relevant and useable information. The first way to construct a specific, targeted keyword search is to use Boolean operators to filter the way keywords are pulling information. The next way to construct a better Google search is to use advanced operators to filter what types of data are being searched. In addition, we will cover many other Google features such as timeline search, Google Images, and Google Scholar.

Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

When Saving Lives Damages Your Own
Elizabeth Tow and Michael Sullivan

Exposure to child sexual exploitation and abuse materials can have widespread and serious negative effects on professionals. Helping exposed individuals learn how to recognize and cope with problems — before they become severe or permanent — is the main priority of the Supporting Heroes in Mental Health Foundational Training (SHIFT) Program. This course will introduce the SHIFT Program and look at the progress this training has made in the industry. “Wellness” will be the main focus, including acknowledging negative effects of chronic exposure to traumatic material and building resiliency to cope with the stress your job entails. Resources will be provided to help you keep and maintain peak wellness.

Self-Defense Basics
Paul Wade and Tina Tappouni
Glisan Room • Two sessions:
• 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. OR
• 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. (Part 1 of 2-day session)

Students will be taught basic but extremely effective skills to counter attacks from every angle — including ground attacks. The class will be led by certified self-defense instructors Detective Paul Wade and Tina Tappouni. These skills they will teach are derived from Krav Maga — the Israeli military fighting technique with a proven combat record — and Brazilian Jiu Jitsu, the premier ground-fighting and ground self-defense art in the world. With these new skills, students will gain the confidence they need to survive instead of being victimized. No prior experience is required, and the class is open to all Summit attendees.

Class limited to 12 participants. You will need to sign-up to participate at the Summit Information Table in the Lower Level Foyer of the Red Lion Hotel on the River.

This class will be repeated on Wednesday, from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. There will also be a two-part evening class taught Tuesday, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m., and Wednesday, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. Participants for the evening classes are encouraged to participate both Tuesday and Wednesday.

Collaborative Prevention:
Supporting Victims, Children and Families Impacted by Violence
Jeffrey Bucholtz, MA

In this presentation, Bucholtz discusses the importance of collaboration in preventing and responding to violence. The presentation includes lecture, performance, audience interaction, group activities, pop-culture analysis, and video segments from a documentary comprising various interviews with service providers and content experts. The presentation includes concrete examples from successes in the San Diego community — including the San Diego Domestic Violence Council — in order to address the necessity for both multi-sector and ecological approaches to violence prevention and response. Participants will learn how to address the cultural conditions that facilitate violence; theoretical and practical strategies for fostering coalitions and networks; how to avoid the isolating effects of fragmentation (or “working in silos”); how to maximize trauma informed approaches; client empowerment; and strengths-based programming.

More Than Meets the Eye: Revealing a Serial Child Sex Offender
Geoff Erichsen, Bill Golden, DA, Nichole Hillyer, Sue Lewis, LCSW, and Sue Skinner, MD, FAAP

It is well-known that young children are at higher risk for sexual abuse, and are not developmentally able to tell a trusted adult clearly what is happening to them. In this presentation, our multidisciplinary team follows the evolution of a case involving young girls, from first disclosure to prosecution, addressing critical issues along the way — including safety in the home, history of the alleged offender, detailed case investigation, and, ultimately, sentencing. We will address how crucial communication is amongst team members, and how ongoing coordination between partners ultimately supports children and families.

Broken Bones: When Should We Worry About Child Abuse?
Thomas J. Valvano, MD

In this session, Dr. Valvano — Medical Director of the Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect (SCAN) Program at Doernbecher Children’s Hospital and a Clinical Associate Professor of Pediatrics at Oregon Health & Science University — will do a review of pediatric fracture types and biomechanics. Dr. Valvano will discuss how to differentiate between accidental and inflicted fractures. A review of common bone disorders that may cause fractures and medical evaluations for children presenting with suspicious fractures will be discussed.

Scalds, Scorches and Splashes: Burn Injuries in Children
Matthew Cox, MD
The lecture will review the medical aspects of pediatric burn injuries — including the classic forced immersion burns, accidental spills, and unusual burn injuries. Topics such as mechanism of injury, medical evidence as it pertains to abusive burns, and treatment of burn injuries will be discussed. The lecture will be given from the perspective of a child abuse pediatrician with a target audience of investigators and prosecutors.

A Multidisciplinary Approach to Child Abuse Prevention: What’s Happening in Oregon Law and Practice?
Sally Blackwood, MA, LPC, Amber Kroeker, MPH, CPST, and Sara Taggart, MPA, RYT
It’s difficult to argue with the importance of preventing child abuse. Research on adverse childhood experiences tells us that prevention is paramount for keeping children safe and healthy and a key to mitigating profound societal issues such as high-school dropouts, teen pregnancy and mental-health crises. But what is child abuse prevention? And how can we do it effectively? This presentation explores a paradigm shift in which Oregon is leading the way — from traditional definitions of prevention (primary, secondary and tertiary) towards an ecological and multidisciplinary model. Using case examples from three organizations – Cares NW, Randall Children’s Hospital and The Children’s Center – we will look at how a “spectrum approach” to prevention is playing out in our experiences and discuss what the future may hold for communities around our state.

Assessment of Sexual Behavior Problems in Prepubescent Children (Part 1 of 2)
Geraldine Crisci, MSW
This workshop will present an assessment protocol for assessing sexual behavior problems in prepubescent children. Five etiological categories will be presented and defined, and case examples will be used to illustrate differences.

Finding Trace: Fusing the Forensic Interview with Forensic Evidence
Sally K. Sheppard, LCSW and Jeremy C. Howell
This workshop will fuse the link between a disclosure of child abuse during the forensic interview and the forensic evidence that can be gathered from a crime scene. The workshop will also focus on the need for various disciplines to work together in a team approach in sharing information that may lead to a stronger criminal case. Workshop participants will be given a detailed explanation of what types of corroborating physical and trace evidence can be found by crime scene specialists, as well as the equipment utilized to find even the slightest of trace evidence. This workshop also emphasizes the use of an Alternate Light Source (ALS) and methods for recognizing and collecting technological-based evidence. This will further the forensic interviewer’s knowledge about corroborating physical and trace evidence and assist in crafting the forensic interview in order to strengthen the case beyond the word of a child victim. This workshop also promotes the collaboration between those that interview child victims and those that collect evidence at the scene of the crime.

The primary intended audience would be those within the field of law enforcement (most specifically those working child abuse and sexual assault cases) along with those who work in the field of social work as Court Appointed Special Advocates or employees of Child Protective Services and Children’s Advocacy Centers (as both family advocates and forensic interviewers). This training would also be beneficial for forensic nurses working in the field of child abuse and sexual assault in learning additional ways to collect evidence on a body. Prosecutors of child abuse and sexual assault cases will learn the additional ways those gathering evidence can strengthen the case.

This information is new and pressing because it assists with the validation of a child’s disclosure of abuse by bringing together the link between the child’s disclosure of abuse and the physical evidence that can be found in the area where the abuse occurred. Case studies and research through the instructors’ experience has shown that evidence to corroborate a child’s statement about the abuse can be found at the scene of the abuse months and years after the disclosure. Once those involved in the case learn of this information, it can add validation to the child’s statement. This session will be repeated Wednesday from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

More than Enforcement: How Law Enforcement Can Change the Environment to Help Survivors and Prevent Sexual Violence
Jeffrey Bucholtz, MA
Rape does not just “happen.” Sexual violence occurs when the environment allows perpetrators to operate freely, and when survivors do not feel safe to come forward. In fact, when survivors of sexual violence come forward with their stories, they are often met with doubt, disbelief, and even hostility from the culture around them. For law enforcement officers, this provides an important opportunity to take an active role in survivor support and violence prevention. In this workshop, participants will explore several investigative strategies to assist in evidence collection while also disrupting the cultural myths about sexual violence that facilitate a lack of safe space for survivors and embolden perpetrators.

5G
Predators on the Darknet
Joe Sullivan, PhD.
Many who would seek to sexually exploit children and share their abuse with like-minded others are now choosing to hide in the Darknet. This presentation is a case study of an administrator of a Darknet forum which explores his online as well as offline behavior. It will include aspects of the investigation and an interview with the offender post-conviction.

The Digital Culture of Kids Today
Chris McKenna
In this presentation, McKenna, Founder of Protect Young Eyes, will answer each of these questions:
• Why is online pornography having such a profound impact on our children?
• What specific apps and devices are kids using — and what are their risks?
  • How is the brain’s complex neurology impacted by the Internet?
  • How can adults stay current on the constantly changing digital landscape?
The hope is that parents, educators, law enforcement and any caring adult will walk out of this presentation enlightened, encouraged and equipped to defend our precious children from online dangers. Creating safer digital environments in our homes, schools, and public places is possible, but it requires diligence and persistence.
This session will be repeated Wednesday from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

Identifying Subjects Seeking to Sexually Exploit a Child in Your Own Jurisdiction (Part 1 of 2)
Michael Sullivan
How many subjects in your home jurisdiction are currently online seeking to sexually exploit a child? What are their screen names? What times are they online? This hands-on computer lab will help local law enforcement officers answer each of the above questions. During this lab, sworn law enforcement officers will learn how to use a chat-based program to identify subjects in their home jurisdiction who are seeking to sexually exploit children. The lab will cover the use of an undercover persona, identification of predicated chat rooms, and geo-location to regionalize investigations. This lab is for sworn personnel only. This session will continue from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.
Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

Trust & Safety: Kik’s Approach to a Safe Chat Community
Michelle Micks and Nicole Nearing
This presentation will provide an overview of Kik’s processes and resources available for global law enforcement in criminal investigations. Kik’s Trust & Safety team will discuss how Kik works, new product features, and data that may be available pursuant to legal process. They’ll also provide an overview on Kik’s latest safety features and privacy controls available to users, as well as ongoing safety initiatives.
Kik is a smartphone messenger application that lets users connect with their friends and the world around them through chat. Users can send texts, GIFs, pictures, videos and more — all with the app. Kik uses an existing Wi-Fi connection or data plan to send and receive messages. Kik is available for download through the iOS App Store and the Google Play store on most iOS (iPhone, iPod, iPad), Android (including Kindle Fire) and Windows 7 devices. Users may also be using Kik on their Symbian-based or BlackBerry 4.6-7 phone; however, as of May 2014, it was no longer possible to download or register new accounts on these devices. This session will be repeated on Thursday from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

Case Vignettes in Child Abuse and Neglect
Catherine Y.H. Wagoner, MD
Through illustrative cases, Child Abuse Pediatrician Dr. Wagoner of CARES NW will explore some challenging child-welfare scenarios, with basic background review of the legal, policy and practice, and ethical factors pertinent to each scenario.
Objectives include:
1. Reviewing the principles behind decision-making when faced with difficult cases in child abuse and neglect;
2. Learning the Oregon Revised Statutes governing child welfare;
3. Learning some of the principles guiding the child welfare response, both from law enforcement agencies and departments of human services; and
4. Beginning to think of a scheme of how to resolve ethical conflicts when faced with child-welfare situations.

Take out The Drama, Bring in the Trauma: How to Convert Challenges into Convictions
Kelsey McKay, JD

What impact does trauma have on the initiation, investigation, prosecution and decisions made by the trier of fact in violent crime? What is its place in determining whether a report of a crime is taken seriously, documented, investigated or prosecuted? The answer may surprise you. Often, conclusions about whether or not a report is credible, reasonable, and provable are filtered through the lens of one’s own life experiences, beliefs and frameworks. When a victim makes a report of a traumatic crime, there is a process by which we filter information — often resulting in critically inaccurate judgments of the report and victim. Information reported by the victim may not seem to make sense, and is often misinterpreted as “reasonable doubt.” However, if properly understood and translated, such evidence can be valuable. The presenters will provide information about common “red flags” — and discuss strategies to enable a better analysis of these complex cases.

Protecting Yourself in a Tech World: Digital Officer Safety and Ethical Concerns
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott

Nothing is more important than officer safety, whether on the street or on the computer. This lecture will show how people leave traces of themselves when visiting websites, what information can be traced, and how to ensure that investigations are not being compromised when broadcasting this information. The instructors will cover website data, IP tracing, cell phone considerations, Bluetooth snarfing, and home wireless networks. This lecture also addresses the unique responsibilities of those in the medical, legal, law enforcement, victim services and advocacy fields — highlighting common pitfalls of social media use by professionals. The audience will see examples pulled from various media sites that could cause ethical issues. Hypotheticals will also be discussed to encourage audience participation and interaction in determining whether social media use crosses an ethical boundary. Privacy issues will also be addressed.

Jackson Michelson concert for Summit attendees
7 – 10 p.m. • Grand Ballroom

Sponsored by the Oregon State Sheriff’s Association, rising country music star Jackson Michelson will be performing exclusively for Summit attendees in the Red Lion Hotel on the River’s Grand Ballroom. This is a performance you won’t want to miss.

About Jackson: Raised in Corvallis, Oregon, Jackson Michelson kicked off his country career on the West Coast, carving out a sound that blended the rootsy twang of the American South with the sunny, feel-good spirit of the Pacific Coast. Nashville — the official capital of country music — lay 2,300 miles to the southeast, but Michelson focused on his home turf first, building an audience of West Coast fans who were drawn to his high-energy shows and relatable songwriting. By the time he did move to Nashville, he’d already spent years on the road, growing his fanbase show-by-show and earning a record contract with Curb Records in the process. Now, with a record deal under his belt, Michelson is prepping for the next phase of his career. There are new shows to play, new songs to be written and new opportunities to explore. But he’s still the boy from Corvallis, happy to sing about “The Good Life” — a life he’s built himself, show by show and song by song — to an audience that continues to grow.

CHAMPIONS FOR CHILDREN AWARD CEREMONY

KEYNOTE:
Are We Making a Difference? Should I Keep Doing This Work?
Chris Newlin, MS, LPC, Executive Director, National Children’s Advocacy Center

For many years, social entrepreneurs worked to develop a multidisciplinary response to child abuse while recalling past frustration with a siloed approach that limited our effectiveness and also caused additional trauma for children and families. Many professionals working in the field now only know current CAC/MDT approach and don’t have the experience of working in both systems. Thus, they view the current model as the institutional approach (the way we do things) without fully knowing the rationale for this approach. Reminding everyone of the rationale for this approach, its effectiveness and impacts, and the worldwide implementation of this model is valuable and invigorating. If that is not enough, connecting the dots behind an effective response to child abuse and its impact on our nation’s health and economy will inspire attendees to look beyond the individual caseloads to the impact “we,” as a collective group, are having on our future generations.

7A
Risk Assessment and Risk Management of Perpetrators of Sexual Crimes Against Children
Joe Sullivan, PhD.

The process of evaluating the risk of sexual harm to children in the future is a complex process that cannot be achieved by simply administering a set of psychometric tests or an actuarial risk assessment tool. Risk assessment requires practitioners to have specialist knowledge and skills related to perpetrators — and how perpetrators manipulate to gain the trust of potentially protective others and achieve access to children. This presentation explores the challenges of forensic risk assessment interviews and uses case studies to illustrate the key issues.

7B
Sudden Unexplained Infant Deaths (SUID): A Comprehensive Review
Patrick Bray, Sue Skinner MD, Eric Tonsfeldt BS, D-ABDMI, and Chris Young, MD

This presentation utilizes a spectrum of experts in order to aid attendees in understanding the spectrum of issues concerning the investigation of unexplained infant deaths. The leading causes of infant deaths will be reviewed, along with what constitutes both safe sleep environments as well as unsafe sleep practices. Developmental milestones of infants will be covered. Next, the team will address how professionals must work together to conduct a comprehensive infant death scene investigation, including witness interviews and doll re-enactment. The team discusses critical scene and case information needed. Finally, the medical examiner will instruct the audience how to interpret the information that investigators collect, within the context of the physiologic findings on autopsy, and how the totality of the findings and circumstances informs both the cause and manner of death. This presentation best illustrates how our multidisciplinary approach is optimally applied to the investigation of infant deaths.

7C
Childhood Trauma: Costs, Consequences and Proven Interventions
Kim Jacobowitz, LCSW, and Cathleen Lang, MD

The first portion of this presentation will define what trauma is and provide examples of childhood trauma. It will review the biologic and epigenetic changes that toxic stress and trauma cause on the brain and body. It will also discuss the signs and symptoms that care providers may note when treating a patient who has been through significant trauma. Both long-term and short-term consequences of childhood trauma will be discussed in this presentation, as well as the costs to society. The second portion of this presentation will focus on proven (evidence-based) trauma treatment interventions for children. There are several treatment models that have shown to be effective in treating traumatized children and improving mental health outcomes for parents. This presentation will provide an overview of a few of these models, with a specific focus on Trauma-Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (TF-CBT) and Alternatives For Families: A Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy (AF-CBT).

7D Critical Issues in Sibling Sexual Abuse
Geraldine Crisci, MSW

This workshop will review the literature and clinical features of sibling sexual abuse. Topics include: separation of victim and offender, joint interviews with victim and offender, and the roles of key service providers (police, protective services, probation, and mental health). Discussion of placement decisions will be part of this workshop.

7E How to Survive Cross Examination for Forensic Interviewers: It’s Not What You Say, It’s How You Say It
Lawrence Jay Braunstein, Esq., and Julie Kenniston, MSW, LISW

Successful child sexual abuse prosecutions depend in large part on the quality of the forensic interview of the child, and the testimony of the forensic interviewer. This presentation will focus on the various protocols used during the interview process; disclosure as a process or event; forensic linguistics; videotaping of forensic interviews; and how to best present your testimony in the courtroom, both on direct examination and cross examination. The goal of the program is to “re-educate” forensic interviewers to understand and consider how what they do in the forensic interview room/CAC will “play out” in the courtroom.

7F Grooming: Making You See
What I Want You to See and Believe
Chris Newlin, MS, LPC

The investigation of child abuse is challenging, and the pursuit of evidence associated with the grooming of children, caregivers, and the community environment provides opportunities for investigators to pursue additional evidence. This workshop will provide an overview of research related to grooming and propose a new framework for the concept of grooming that could dramatically modify current investigatory practices, in addition to enhancing current forensic interviewing efforts.

Learning Objectives:
1. Attendees will develop a framework for classifying grooming behaviors by those who abuse children;
2. Attendees will review recently published research on grooming related to child abuse and related content; and
3. Attendees will identify new opportunities for identifying corroborative evidence based on this new “grooming” information.

7G The Darknet and Emerging Technologies
Justin Fitzsimmons, JD

As the internet continues to evolve, new layers populate where offenders commit criminal offenses. One such area is known as the Darknet. Participants will learn how the Darknet works — and how potential criminal activity facilitated on the Darknet is crucial to investigating and prosecuting child exploitation cases. In addition, new software applications are being added to mobile phones and tablets daily. This presentation will demonstrate several of the newer applications for mobile devices that are popular for teenagers. Participants will learn about “vault applications” and the ability to secretly store information.

7CL Tech Tools for Prosecutors
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott

This hands-on computer lab designed for prosecutors will introduce useful software and technical methodologies. Topics will include Firefox add-ons, such as Video Downloadhelper (to save videos from YouTube and other websites), and Screengrab (to save or copy websites). Also included will be Google searching techniques (Boolean operators) to make searching for information much more efficient and reliable. Google advanced operators, such as site: (to search only particular websites) and filetype: (to search only particular filetypes), as well as Google services such as Images (to search only images as well as reverse image searching techniques) and Scholar (to search only legal journals) will also be covered. Also in Google we will talk about all the data saved that can be viewed in “Dashboard” and “My Activity.” Other software that will be introduced includes: Jing (screenshot and screen-cast software), VLC (for playing movies), IrfanView (for viewing images), and Audacity (for audio editing).

Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

Organized Groups of Offenders
Joe Sullivan, PhD.

The internet has brought about many changes in the world of child sexual abuse. Among the most alarming is the dramatic increase of offenders linking with others of a similar mind to molest children. Using case examples on some of the most notorious offenders in the UK, this presentation will outline how such groups function — and how they seek to protect themselves from infiltration or detection. In addition, the presentation explores the challenges involved in combating organized child sexual abuse.

Effects of Child Maltreatment: Child, Family and Professional
Matthew Cox, MD

Child abuse affects the child directly involved in many ways — physically and emotionally. This talk will start by illustrating the physical, developmental and emotional effects of child abuse. It will transition to review the effects on the parents and the family unit. Lastly, the talk will utilize case examples to illustrate the effects of child abuse on the professional including missed cases of child abuse, professional distrust and dysfunction in child abuse cases, and confrontation. An approach to minimizing the toxic effects of child abuse cases on the professional involved in these cases will be discussed.

8C
Following the Evidence in the Commercial Sexual Exploitation Forensic Interview
Julie Kenniston, MSW, LISW

This presentation will provide content that forensic interviewers should incorporate in interviews of minors suspected as trafficking and/or internet crime victims. The focus will be on non-caregiver cases. Commercial sexual exploitation interviews will be compared and contrasted to intrafamilial cases. Strategies to obtain case-specific details will be discussed.

Objectives:
• Participants will compare and contrast commercial sexual exploitation interviews with intrafamilial sex abuse interviews;
• Participants will learn questioning strategies for gathering details about commercial sexual exploitation; and
• Participants will apply the research of repeated interviews to commercial sexual exploitation cases.

As law enforcement agencies and other youth serving professionals begin to better identify youth at risk of exploitation, many referrals are being made for these youth to be interviewed. The CAC model provides many benefits in serving these youth, but there are also some considerations that are being overlooked. Trained, experienced forensic interviewers have expanded the types of cases that are seen for interviews, and many skills cross over.

Although there has been much training on the dynamics of exploitation, there are some key issues to address in the forensic interview that are different from the traditional types of cases seen in CACs. This presentation will compare and contrast exploitation cases with typical cases seen in CACs, and offer suggestions on topic strategies unique to commercial sexual exploitation cases.

8D
Assessment of Sibling Sexual Abuse
Geraldine Crisci, MSW

The critical role of full family participation in the assessment and treatment process will be outlined. Family dynamics, parental issues, sibling issues, and individual issues for both the initiator and victimized child will be presented.

8E
How NOT to Help the Defense Attorney in Child Sexual Abuse Cases (Part 1 of 2)
Lawrence Jay Braunstein, Esq.

This program, presented by a defense attorney (and former prosecutor), will acquaint law enforcement, prosecutors, medical practitioners, mental-health practitioners, child-protection caseworkers and victim-assistance agency personnel with the intimate workings of the defense in child sexual abuse cases. Topics covered will include the preparation of a defense case, investigative techniques, pre-trial motion practice and discovery, examinations before trial, jury selection, defense trial strategy, demonstrative evidence, trial exhibits, cross-examination techniques, and courtroom psychology.

By having a broad overview of both pre-trial and trial procedures — and how the defense will approach its preparation during each phase of the litigation — the expert and lay (fact) witness will be better prepared in understanding their individual roles in the proceedings, and better prepared to maximize their participation in the overall litigation.

8F
Intimate Partner Strangulation (Part 1 of 2)
Kelsey McKay, JD

This session will cover intimate partner strangulation from top to bottom. Part 1 focuses on how to implement and understand a strangulation supplement. Part 2 will explore prosecution — including ideas for voir dire, a simulation of using a medical expert, and recommended tips to help juries understand this complicated crime. Participants will gain a better understanding of how strangulation is different than all other types of intimate partner assault — both physiologically, in terms of its lethal danger, and emotionally, in terms of the effect it can have on the victim. The session will also discuss defensive injuries and help the audience interpret these, so that a victim is not accidentally arrested and prosecutors can use that evidence to their advantage. You will walk away from this talk and never again ask, “Why didn’t she have visible injuries?”

8G
Corroboration: The Key to Child Exploitation Cases
Justin Fitzsimmons, JD

Supporting a child’s disclosure through corroborative evidence is essential in child-abuse investigations and prosecutions. This presentation covers the potential areas to discover corroborative evidence, and explains the importance of technology-based corroboration. The audience is shown detailed examples of how statements made during the disclosure lead to corroborative evidence.

8H
Sex Trafficking (Part 1 of 2)
JR Ujifusa and Mike Gallagher

This two-part session takes an in-depth and practical look at sex trafficking, investigations, and prosecutions. For large and small agencies, sex trafficking is prevalent and growing. This presentation will provide real-life applications for targeting demand and traffickers. Mike Gallagher from the Portland Police Bureau and JR Ujifusa from the Multnomah County DA’s office will share innovative ways to conduct missions, investigations, charging decisions and trial techniques. This session will continue from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

8CL
Facebook Investigations: Advanced Searching and Saving (Part 1 of 2)
Lauren Wagner and Tim Lott

Facebook is the largest worldwide social-media network, and contains a substantial amount of potential investigative information. First we will use Facebook graph search, which uses specific targeted terms that can show investigative material. We will demonstrate how graph searches work, and explain how syntax — the structure of search keywords and phrases — is vital to a successful search. Once a target profile has been identified, we will use Facebook URL manipulations. These URL manipulations are specific, and offer information beyond what can be found simply by looking at someone’s profile. These URL manipulations can show content from the target, such as photo comments, video likes, and comparisons with friends. Lastly, we will cover free techniques for saving Facebook videos and capturing screenshots of profiles. This session will continue from 3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

Labs are limited to 40 participants. Priority will be given to investigators. If you have indicated that you will likely attend this course during the registration process, you will need to check your participation status on-site at Registration prior to attending the lab.

8IL
Victim Notification: Protecting Rights in Child Exploitation Cases
Jennifer Newman and Shannon Meyer

Child victims who were sexually exploited and photographed experience the additional trauma of knowing that their abuse has been permanently memorialized in images. This presentation will address the efforts to help victims receive proper notification of their rights in child-exploitation cases. Participants will learn the step-by-step process that begins at the time the victim is identified, as well as what “victim notification” entails. The FBI’s Office for Victim Assistance (OVA) provides notification to these victims (or guardians), and NCMEC serves as the central repository in the U.S. for information relating to child victims depicted in sexually exploitive images and videos. Participants will learn the step-by-step process that begins at the time the victim is identified, as well as what “victim notification” entails. The FBI’s Office for Victim Assistance (OVA) provides notification to these victims (or guardians), and NCMEC serves as the central repository in the U.S. for information relating to child victims depicted in sexually exploitive images and videos. Participants will also hear where victim impact statements can be attained — and how they can be used to give a human voice to otherwise silent pictures.

9A Sexual Sadism
   Joe Sullivan, PhD.
   While not the most common motivation for sexually abusing children, sadistic arousal is more common than many professionals realize. This presentation examines the prevalence and nature of sadistically motivated sexual abusers of children. Using video interviews with offenders, Dr. Sullivan will highlight some of the key issues for professionals to understand about sexual sadism in sex offenders.

9B Having the Last Word: Medical, Law Enforcement and DA Collaboration in Building a Case for Abusive Head Trauma
   Kevin Dresser, Kevin Barton, DDA and Tamara Grisby, MD
   This case study discusses a recent abusive head trauma investigation and prosecution. The investigating detective, the consulting physician, and the prosecuting attorney will present perspectives and highlight: necessity of continuous dialogue among disciplines, updates of victim status, detailed corroboration of facts, and deconstruction of experts to build a compelling case.

9C Recent Research Affecting Child Abuse Investigations
   Chris Newlin, MS, LPC
   This workshop is intended for all levels of professionals who are involved in the investigation and prosecution of child abuse. We are working in a continuously changing field, and it is critical that direct service providers stay abreast of the current research affecting our work. This workshop will provide a general review of recent research affecting child abuse investigations and prosecutions, and challenge the attendees to relate this information to their current practices in the field.
   Learning objectives:
   1. Attendees will review recently published research affecting child abuse investigations and prosecutions;
   2. Attendees will relate this information to their current practices in the field; and
   3. Attendees will identify multiple issues to raise with their local MDT to inform them of this emerging research and identify potential modifications to current practice.

9D Treatment of Sibling Sexual Abuse
   Geraldine Crisci, MSW
   In this workshop, specific case examples demonstrate a clinical model to address issues of safety, loyalty, engagement, and minimization. Treatment goals will be discussed for each component of the family system.

EVENING

Downtown Portland Pub Crawl
Buses leave the hotel at 5:45 p.m. and 7:00 p.m.

Join us for a night of fun, relaxation and networking at our traditional Pub Crawl. Free bus transportation will be provided from the hotel to the brewery district — where we will be within walking distance of a great many pubs and eateries for which Portland is famous!

The first bus will leave promptly at 5:30 p.m. Thursday for downtown Portland, and the second bus at 6:30 p.m., from outside the Grand Ballroom entrance to the Red Lion Hotel on the River. Buses will be returning to the hotel beginning at 8:00 p.m., and again at 9:00, 10:00 and 11:00 p.m.

Sign-up is available at the Summit Information Table, Lower Level Foyer, on the first day of the Summit. Spaces on the buses go quickly, so don’t forget to reserve yours!

Vine Gogh Artist Bar
6:00 – 8:00 p.m. • Coffee Bar

Join the fun on Thursday night, April 13 from 6 to 8 p.m. as Vine Gogh Artist Bar takes you through the step-by-step process of recreating their popular “Starry Hood” painting on 11x14 canvas. Vine Gogh has given a discounted rate of $25 per person. All materials (canvas, brushes, easels, paint, aprons to wear) are provided in the price. Vine Gogh’s owner Jenny will be leading you through every step of the process until you have finished with your own masterpiece to bring home. Wine will be available to purchase to get the full experience (and have some liquid encouragement help). Music, painting, and wine will provide the ultimate fun for an event you won’t forget! Pre-registration and payment required to secure your spot! Register at our Information Tables in the Lower Level Foyer by noon on Thursday, April 13.

KEYNOTE:
Together We Stand
Kevin Y. Brown

“Together We Stand” is an interactive keynote presentation presented by a former foster child of 17 years. In this workshop, professional speaker Kevin Y. Brown focuses on life through the lens of a foster-care child—and reveals best practices he has learned from around the world that help re-energize child-welfare professionals. These best practices create a team around foster youth to assist them in maximizing their potential in life.

Strangulation: A Hidden Crime in Child Abuse
Kelsey McKay, JD

Over the last decade, as felony strangulation statutes have been enacted throughout the country, communities have been shocked at the devastating prevalence of this disturbing assault between intimate partners. Through proper training, responders have started to better identify this often-missed and lethal crime—finally giving its victims a voice. The next step is to educate those working in the child population so that we can recognize and better document when children have been either victims of or witnesses to strangulation.

10B
Subtle Erosion: Neglect, Environmental Instability & Chronic Trauma
Heather McKeag, MD

In this session, Dr. McKeag will lead a discussion of the longstanding effects of chronic neglect and home-life instability. This discussion will include a look at foster-care outcomes and potential positive influences imparting resilience to children affected by neglect.

10C
The Forensic Interviewer in the Witness Chair
Julie Kenniston, MSW, LISW, and Justin Fitzsimmons

This presentation will help forensic interviewers understand their role at trial and provide helpful tips for strong testimony. Preparation and common pitfalls will be discussed, as well as some of the different types of testimony. Direct and cross-examination will be discussed. The process of preparing a prosecutor for effective testimony will be described.

10D
Advanced Sex Trafficking
JR Ujifusa

This presentation will focus on problem-solving—and innovative ways to investigate and prosecute sex trafficking offenders. From focusing on high-frequency buyers to prosecuting sex-trafficking cases without victim cooperation, this presentation will share innovative approaches and case studies to help combat sex trafficking in your jurisdictions.

10E
Courtroom Psychology: How to be a Good Witness and Survive in the Courtroom
Lawrence Jay Braunstein, Esq.

This program is designed for the expert and lay (fact) witness, and will “demystify” the trial process. It will address and explain the different layers of action in the courtroom, how to “read” it, and how to effectively respond. Issues covered will include body language; the importance of what you say and how you say it; demonstrative evidence and effective presentation; the trial as theatre; establishing a level of comfort in the courtroom; how to defend yourself on cross examination; and how to protect yourself in the witness box (when no one else will). The more comfortable and confident a witness is in the courtroom, the more effective their testimony can be.

10F
Crimes Committed in the Law Enforcement Family: Officer Involved Domestic and Sexual Violence
Mark Wynn

When we discover acts of domestic and sexual violence in the law enforcement family, it can be one of the most difficult challenges for our officers and for our agencies. Historically, we have managed and overcome complex issues, including use of force, racial profiling, civil rights, and immigration. This session will address the challenges of our latest ethics test—that of officer-involved domestic/sexual violence—by reviewing our history; lack of accurate statistics; civil risks; the unique characteristics of conducting investigations; nationally established standards for recruiting, training and corrective discipline; and the continued need for implementation of policy. Law enforcement has a duty to prevent domestic and sexual violence in the general public and especially in our own members’ families. These unique crimes can be indicative of a need for systemic and cultural change. How we communicate that change, establish our standards, and accept accountability while transforming the culture will be foundational topics of this course of study.
The 2017 Child Abuse and Family Violence Summit Committee would like to congratulate the recipients of our annual Champions for Children awards.

These individuals had been nominated by their peers because they symbolize what they believed to be a Champion for Children in the field of child abuse and family violence prevention.

If you would like to have someone recognized for this award in 2017, please fill out a nomination form from our website at www.ChildAbuseSummit.com.

Purpose: Inspire and refresh Summit attendees to be as effective at caring for their own health and well-being as they are at taking care of others. Good health is everything. It is difficult to perform at our best when we do not have good health.

Challenge: Long-term success in the work of combating child abuse and family violence requires us to care for our own mental, spiritual, and physical well-being. Some require a greater degree of preparedness and must pursue fitness to be effective.

Wellness: The state of being in body and mind that results from the deliberate effort to prevent illness and prolong life.

Fitness: The ability to perform well at any task that could imaginably present itself across a wide variety of physical demands and under a wide variety of conditions. There are disciplines represented here which must pursue this higher goal of fitness, beyond wellness, in order to be safe and effective: firefighters, emergency medical technicians, police, parole and probation, and military. Perhaps there are others that need to be included: emergency room medical personnel and child protective workers might be some of those.

• When you look at the most demanding tasks of your job, are they best described as routine and not challenging, or do they demand a high level of general physical preparedness?

Nutrition: Obesity, diabetes, and other nutrition-related illness is epidemic — in adults and in our youth. The American diet is shockingly high in calories, high in sugar, high in saturated fat and LOW in nutritional density. Each time you eat, you should consider the nutritional density of what you are eating.

• Everyone, including everyone attending this Summit, needs to pursue a way of eating that will guide them through the rest of their lives. Your diet must support wellness and fitness.

• We set an example for the families and children we protect. If we are eating right and look right, they will notice and you become an agent for change.

• Eating a wide variety of vegetables, fruits, nuts, seeds and lean meats is the best way to set the proper example for nutritional well being to those around you.
Finding the diet regimen that works for you requires you to think about a number of factors, including:

• moral choices about the food you eat
• dietary demands imposed by your activities
• challenges posed by your work and travel schedule
• what food sources are available locally.

Evaluating your requirements is the first step. Then, a lifetime of research and study follows to ensure that you are achieving what you set out to do.

Alcohol and Drugs: It is difficult to achieve our wellness goals when using drugs or abusing alcohol. Alcohol makes weight loss much more difficult. Eliminating tobacco use is the single most significant step you can take today to improve your health.

Mental & Spiritual Health: Some of the most daunting challenges to remaining healthy in this type of work are the attacks on our balance and our sense of safety and morality. Few tasks expose us to as much “spiritual danger” as having contact with children that have been physically or sexually abused. How we regain our balance when we are exposed to terrible things is critical. Being physically well is the first step. We must then ensure that we have an active spiritual life that will make us as resilient and agile as possible. What are your answers?

• outdoor activities
• religion
• meditation
• yoga
• Pilates
• martial arts
• volunteering
• travel
• political activism
• family time
• hobbies
• art
• music
• sports

Family Health: Our personal lives must be nurtured to flourish. The demands at work can be so taxing that little remains to care for our loved ones. Make a commitment to constantly investing your family and personal relationships.

Long Term Success: There are tools that we can use to stay on track with our goals and programs:

• Have iron will and just do it on your own.
• Build a community to support your goals. Most of us succeed because we have a support system that keeps us honest and on track. This can be as informal as getting to know the people that lay down their mats near yours at your yoga class or as formal as blogging your diet and workouts so you can blast your success around the Internet.

• Competition. Whether that is racing or just participating to track your own improvements, having competitive milestones is a great addition to building your support community.

Medical Support: Unless you are very lucky, your doctor or other medical provider is not likely to provide you with many clues about your need to start on wellness and fitness or how to get there, but don’t forget to include them in the journey.

• If you’ve been sedentary for a long time, are overweight, have a high risk of coronary heart disease or some other chronic health problem, see your doctor for a medical evaluation before beginning a physical activity program or changing your diet radically. Use common sense.

• You need to know your numbers on BLOOD PRESSURE AND BLOOD TEST NUMBERS. If something is out of balance, fix it.

• Don’t be afraid to seek out medical assistance for ailments and illnesses that you detect. Also, when you have an activity related ailment, a pulled muscle, shoulder pain, etc., act quickly to have it treated by an appropriate provider such as physical therapist, massage therapist, or acupuncturist.
Kevin Barton is a Chief Deputy District Attorney in the Washington County District Attorney’s Office. He supervises the child abuse prosecution unit and is the chair of the county child abuse multidisciplinary team. His caseload focuses on crimes against children and violent crimes. Prior to becoming a prosecutor, Mr. Barton was a trial attorney in a West Coast civil litigation law firm. Mr. Barton attended Gonzaga University and University of Notre Dame Law School.

Sally Blackwood, MA, LPC is a Licensed Professional Counselor who began working with traumatized children in 1990. She has worked at CARES Northwest since 2006, and previously worked in residential treatment, community mental health, and private practice. She has experience and training in counseling children, teens, families, and adults who have experienced trauma with a specialty in sexual abuse. Currently, Sally is a member of the CARES Northwest prevention team, and presents to students and adults. Sally has also presented at regional conferences on topics related to child sex abuse and trauma.

Lawrence Jay Braunstein is a partner in the law firm of Braunstein & Zuckerman, Esqs., in White Plains, New York. His practice includes the areas of matrimonial and family law and related civil and criminal litigation. Since 1985 he has specifically focused his practice in the areas of child custody litigation and litigation involving allegations of child sexual abuse, physical abuse and abusive head trauma (or shaken baby syndrome) in matrimonial, family and criminal cases.

He regularly lectures as an invited speaker — both nationally and internationally — in the areas of child sexual abuse, physical abuse, shaken baby syndrome, child custody litigation, expert witness testimony, courtroom psychology, trial procedures, and various other criminal, family and matrimonial law topics to judges, attorneys, medical and mental health professionals, state and federal law enforcement personnel, state and federal prosecutors, and child protection service personnel.

Since 1999 he has served on the faculty of the New York City Police Department Sex Crimes and Child Abuse Investigation Course. Since 2014 he has also served on the faculty of the New York City Police Department Homicide Investigator Course. In 2004 he was the only defense attorney invited by the FBI to participate as a member of the working group to plan the International Online Child Sexual Victimization Symposium, and to present to both the working group and the Symposium. He has conducted hundreds of trainings with police departments across the county, with the FBI Behavioral Analysis Units, and with police agencies in England, Scotland, Wales, and South Africa.

He is presently an Adjunct Professor of Law at Hofstra University School of Law, Hempstead, New York. Since 2007 he has been named as one of the “Top Attorneys in the New York Metro Area” as published in the New York Times Magazine’s “Super Lawyer” section, and one of the top 25 “Super Lawyers” in the Westchester County, NY area. In 2014 he was rated “AV Preeminent” by the Martindale Hubbell Peer Review Ratings — indicating his high level of ethical standards and professional ability — generated from evaluations by other members of the bar and the judiciary in the United States and Canada.

Detective Patrick Bray has been involved in law enforcement for over 22 years. He started out his career as a police officer with the City of Prescott, Arizona. While working at the Prescott Police Department, he received a Medal of Valor in 1997 and also received the City of Prescott Achievement of Civic Excellence Award (PACE). Since 1999, he has been working for the Clackamas County Sheriff’s Office. Promoted to Detective in 2010, he has spent the past six years assigned to the Child Abuse Team (CAT). During his time with CAT, Detective Bray has presented numerous case studies and investigative presentations to both Community Partners and high school/college classes. Most recently he served on the Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) Protocol Committee charged with revising and updating investigative considerations outlined in the MDT Protocol.

Award-winning entrepreneur, international speaker and author Kevin Y. Brown brings his audience members high-energy, authentic presentations that provide tangible takeaways to engage them in creating the results and life that they desire.

Born to a young, drug-addicted mother, Kevin entered the California foster-care system at the age of 1, where he remained until emancipating at the age of 18. Despite his early encounters with adversity, he excelled academically and graduated from college debt-free, and with honors in both Fashion Design and Business Supply Chain Management.

Jeffrey S. Bucholtz received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Anthropology and Communication from UC Santa Barbara, where he worked with the UCSB Women’s Center Rape Prevention Education Program as a Male Violence Prevention Specialist. Prior to and during his tenure at the UCSB Women’s Center, Jeff coordinated several student programs — including Men Against Rape, Students Stopping Rape, and the Multicultural Outreach Program. During this time, Jeff began his ongoing work to build and sustain collaborative alliances across privileged and oppressed social groups.

In 2006, Jeff received his Master of Arts in Women’s Studies from San Diego State University. His master’s thesis project, entitled Off the Page and Onto the Stage: Performing Feminist Theory to Prevent Sexual Violence, developed pedagogical and performance strategies for communicating to diverse audiences how feminist theories — including the intersectionality of oppression — should be utilized in sexual violence prevention. In 2009, Jeff's thesis became the basis for his documentary film, “A Way From Violence.”

For the past 11 years, Jeff has worked as an activist and public speaker — providing hundreds of presentations and performances in the fields of sexual violence, masculinity, relationship violence, gender normativity, popular culture, violence prevention, stalking, bullying, working in alliances, feminist thought, and the intersectionality of oppression. Jeff has done extensive work with the male community to engage and involve men in violence prevention, including his work as co-chair of the San Diego Men’s Leadership Forum.

Currently, Jeff is co-president of the San Diego Domestic Violence Council (www.sddvc.org) and is co-director of his social business, We End Violence. Jeff is also an award-winning adjunct faculty member at Southwestern College, where he teaches Oral Communication, TELA Communication (part of an African-American learning community), Public Speaking, and Small Group Facilitation. In addition, Jeff is a faculty lecturer at San Diego State University, where he teaches Popular Culture and Counseling, a course that focuses on the ways that popular culture informs and impacts our identities. Jeff is also an instructor with Speak for Success, a public speaking and coaching business.

Mary-Ann Burkhart, JD is the Director of the Child Abuse Prosecution Project at the Association of Prosecuting Attorneys (APA) in Washington, DC. APA provides training, technical assistance, support and cutting-edge written projects to multi-disciplinary child abuse teams. She comes to APA from National Center for Prosecution of Child Abuse at the National District Attorney’s Association, where she was the Director of the National Center for Prosecution of Child Abuse.

Burkhart began her legal career as an Assistant State Attorney in Miami-Dade County, Florida. As an Assistant under the Honorable Janet Reno, Ms. Burkhart specialized in domestic violence and child abuse cases.

In 1997, Ms. Burkhart joined the staff of the National Center for Prosecution of Child Abuse as a Senior Attorney. From 1997 through 2003, she traveled worldwide and taught extensively on all aspects of child physical and sexual abuse and child homicide cases. As a Senior Attorney at NCPCA, she also published numerous articles and book chapters on various issues relating to investigating and prosecuting cases of child physical and sexual abuse, as well as issues relating to child victims. Her last project as a Senior Attorney at NCPCA was editing and completing work on the 3rd edition of Investigation and Prosecution of Child Abuse, in which she also authored two chapters.

In late 2003, Ms. Burkhardt returned to the courtroom as a homicide prosecutor and then as Training Director at the Office of the State’s Attorney for Baltimore City, Maryland. As Training Director, she was responsible for the training and mentoring programs for the over 200 attorneys in the office. Additionally, she continued to train nationally on issues related to Child Physical and Sexual Abuse and Neglect. She also works as the Faculty Advisor to the ChildFirst Maryland course, a five-day forensic interviewing course for child victims and witnesses. In 2008 Ms. Burkhardt authored Maryland’s Response to Human Trafficking: A New Statute for New Times, which was published in the Maryland Bar Journal. In 2010, Ms. Burkhardt took her expertise to the Anne Arundel County State’s Attorney’s Office, where she specialized in child abuse cases and vulnerable adult and elder abuse cases.

Bill Carson is Chief of Police for the Maryland Heights (MO) Police Department. He has more than 37 years of experience as a police officer in the St. Louis metropolitan area, and has served 16 years in criminal investigation units as a detective, a supervisor and eventually a commander, gaining experience in juvenile, sex crimes, homicide, and undercover narcotics and vice investigations.

Chief Carson is a graduate of the FBI National Academy and the Northwestern University Center for Public Safety School of Police Staff and Command. He has a Master’s Degree in Criminology & Criminal Justice from the University of Missouri — St. Louis. Upon completing his graduate studies, Chief Carson conducted interviews with incarcerated sex offenders as part of two separate research projects. These interviews took place over a three-year period (2003-2005) at seven different prisons throughout Missouri.

Chief Carson served 12 years as a Deputy Commander with the Major Case Squad of Greater St. Louis. He has investigated and commanded homicide investigations for the Major Case Squad in St. Louis, St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren Counties in Missouri. He sits on the Missouri State Child Fatality Review Panel and the Missouri Task Force on Children’s Justice. In 2011, Chief Carson was appointed by Missouri Governor Jay Nixon to serve as a member of the newly created Task Force on the Prevention of Sexual Abuse of Children.

Chief Carson has written several articles and educated police officers, prosecutors and social service workers on understanding and interviewing sex offenders.

Carol L. Chervenak, M.D. completed her medical education and family practice residency at University of Arizona, following an undergraduate degree in Pharmacy from the University of Washington.

Following clinical education in child abuse assessments at the Center for Child Protection in San Diego, California in 1997, she became the medical director of ABC House, the child abuse intervention center for Linn and Benton counties.

Since that time, Dr. Chervenak has helped establish a medical protocol for assessing Drug Endangered Children (DEC), children in homes with substance abuse; compiled and lectures on guidelines for substance abuse and breastfeeding; and lectured on various aspects of child maltreatment.

She is on the Advisory Council for Child Abuse and Neglect and the Oregon Governor’s Sexual Assault Task Force; has been a member of the Oregon Governor’s Methamphetamine Task Force; and has served as a lecturer for the Oregon and National Alliances for Drug Endangered Children.

Dr. Matthew Cox received his undergraduate degree in Bioengineering from Texas A&M University and then attended medical school at the University of Texas Health Science Center Houston Medical School, graduating in 1998. Dr. Cox did his pediatrics residency training at Vanderbilt Children’s Hospital and his fellowship training in Child Abuse at the University of Pennsylvania and Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. He practiced in Dallas, Texas as faculty at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in the Department of Pediatrics and served as the Medical Director of the child abuse program at Children’s Medical Center Dallas from 2004-16. He is a certified Child Abuse Pediatrician by the American Board of Pediatrics. His primary practice involves the medical evaluation of children suspected of being victims of possible physical abuse, sexual abuse or neglect. He currently serves as the medical director of the Children At-Risk Evaluation Services (CARES) Program at St. Luke’s Medical Center in Boise.

Geraldine Crisci, M.S.W. is a mental health professional with 30 years of experience in the field of trauma. She is a private practitioner who provides assessment and treatment to children, youth and their families. She is also a professional trainer, providing educational programs to mental health, protective services, law enforcement, medical and other helping professions.
Geraldine developed and teaches the six-day Trauma Assessment and Treatment Program for Safeguards, which has reached 1,500 professionals in the past 10 years. Geraldine has developed protocols for the assessment and treatment of trauma, sexualized behavior problems and sibling sexual abuse. Geraldine also developed a reunification protocol for families. She has provided support to agencies and families in the successful adoption of children from the protection system.

She has worked extensively with residential treatment programs for children and youth for the past 20 years. She specializes in addressing the impact of trauma on the behavior of children and youth. To this end, she develops clinical programs to provide children, youth and their families with corrective effective therapeutic intervention. Geraldine is a member of the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children (APSAC). She co-authored Paper Dolls and Paper Airplanes: Therapeutic Exercises for Sexually Traumatized Children, which is currently in its 10th year of printing.

Geraldine delivered the closing plenary at the ATSA 33rd Annual Research and Treatment Conference. The plenary addressed normative development in prepubescent children and the prevention of future sexual offending.

Detective Geoff Erichsen has been assigned to the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office Child Abuse Team for the past four years. Detective Erichsen has over 20 years of law enforcement experience. Prior to being promoted to detective in 2011, Detective Erichsen spent 12 years as a patrol deputy and four years in the Special Investigations Unit conducting narcotic investigations. In his current assignment, Detective Erichsen primarily conducts investigations involving the physical and/or sexual abuse of victims under the age of 18.

Detective Paul Farnstrom has been a deputy with the Multnomah County Sheriff's Office since 1995, and is one of the founding members of the Inter-Agency Child Exploitation Prevention Team (INTERCEPT). He has been assigned to that task force since 2007, and has been involved in over 200 investigations of Internet child exploitation, including peer-to-peer, CyberTips, and online chatting cases. He has over 800 hours of advanced training involving internet crimes against children. As a previous law-enforcement trainer, he is now an instructor for the Child Protection System. He has received awards including a letter of appreciation, a citation for his work on local cyber-stings and the Champions For Children Award.

Justin Fitzsimmons, JD is a Program Manager in the High-Tech Crime Training Services (HTCTS) department of SEARCH, The National Consortium for Justice Information and Statistics. He helps coordinate training with law enforcement agencies, prepares budgets, oversees the HTCTS project staff, and develops high-tech crime training projects for justice, public safety, and homeland security agencies nationwide. He also conducts legal, policy, and regulatory research, prepares white papers, and provides assistance and instructional services to justice, public safety, and homeland security agencies — particularly in digital evidence recovery, investigation, and prosecution.

Mr. Fitzsimmons is conducting a national research effort to determine the current capabilities of law enforcement to investigate crimes with digital evidence and make recommendations to decision-makers about resources to assist law enforcement. He also presents at conferences and trainings, participates on advisory committees and task forces, and supports agencies and jurisdictions as they create and implement effective procedures, practices, and technology applications that seek to combat high-tech crime and recover digital evidence.

Before joining SEARCH in 2012, Mr. Fitzsimmons worked for the National District Attorney’s Office, where he was Senior Attorney for its National Center for Prosecution of Child Abuse beginning in 2008. He responded to requests for assistance in child sexual exploitation cases from prosecutors and law enforcement around the United States, designed and presented training seminars, and published articles on emerging technological issues in child sexual exploitation. From 1998–2009, he was an assistant state’s attorney (ASA) in the State’s Attorney’s Offices for Kane and DuPage Counties, Illinois, where he prosecuted cases involving sexual exploitation and digital evidence. As an ASA for Kane County, he supervised the Special Prosecution Unit, responsible for investigating and prosecuting felony cases, including Internet crimes against children. He was also assigned to a Child Advocacy Center team that investigated and prosecuted cases of severe physical and sexual abuse against children, crimes of internet solicitation of children, and child pornography. As an ASA for DuPage County, he worked in the Criminal Prosecutions Bureau and the Felony Domestic Violence Unit.

Mr. Fitzsimmons frequently presents and teaches at international, national, and regional conferences, workshops, webinars, and training courses on digital evidence collection, computer forensics, crimes against children, cybercrime, and human trafficking. He has published articles on digital evidence authentication, computer forensics for prosecutors, child sexual exploitation, and more. In addition, he has drafted legislation that was signed into law in Illinois on several technology-facilitated child sexual exploitation issues from 2006–08.

Mr. Fitzsimmons was a member of the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) National Strategy Working Group on Child Exploitation, and co-chaired its Training Subcommittee. He also participated in the DOJ Office for Victims of Crime Working Group on Restitution for Victims of Child Pornography, the FBI Innocence Lost Working Group, and the Internet Child Exploitation Task Force. He has served as faculty of the National Children’s Advocacy Center, Huntsville, Alabama, and for the North-East Metropolitan Regional Training Center, Police Training, Aurora, Illinois.

Mr. Fitzsimmons is a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology’s Chicago-Kent College of Law, and earned a bachelor’s degree from Wittenberg University in Ohio.

Officer Mike Gallagher has been a police officer with the Portland Police Bureau for 25 years. During the majority of his career he has worked to address the issues related to prostitution and sex trafficking. His work with the victims is accomplished by earning their trust as well as building partnerships with nonprofit organizations that provide needed counseling, housing, and career-building services. He also works to address the buyers — through traditional law enforcement efforts as well as education. Officer Gallagher has contacted over 2,000 victims of trafficking, involving both minors and adults. He has also dealt with approximately 1,000 buyers ("johns") in addition to assisting with the prosecution of numerous traffickers ("pimps"). Officer Gallagher is also cross-designated to work as a special agent with the FBI’s Child Exploitation Task Force.

Bill Golden has been a prosecutor for 14 years. He began his career as a prosecutor in rural Georgia for five years before coming to the Clackamas County District Attorney’s Office in Oregon. He has prosecuted cases that include drug crimes, property crimes, domestic violence, child abuse, homicide, and sex abuse. For the last three years at Clackamas County, a majority of the cases he has prosecuted have been with the Felony person crime unit.

Child Abuse and Family Violence Summit • April 11-14

Speakers

Tamara Grigsby is a graduate of the Uniformed Service University of the Health Sciences and has been a board-certified pediatrician since 1990. She completed her fellowship in Child Abuse Pediatrics with the Kempe Child Protection Team at the University of Colorado in Denver and became one of the first board-certified Child Abuse Pediatricians in 2009.

As general and child abuse pediatric faculty at Oregon Health and Sciences University, Dr. Grigsby consults on alleged cases of child abuse and neglect and supervises resident practice in the General Pediatric Clinic and Mother Baby Unit. Fields of interest include Foster Care, Substance Exposed Infants, and Child Fatality.

Dr. Grigsby has rendered expert testimony — for both defense and prosecution — in civil, criminal and military courts around the world. Her clinical experience in confronting pediatric trauma and childhood fatality has strengthened her faith in the primary care physician’s essential role in promoting safety and preventing injury and death.

Nichole Hillyer has a bachelor’s degree in child development; she originally planned on becoming a teacher, but switched to social work after she spent time volunteering with youth in foster care. She received her Master’s in Social Work from from Humboldt State University. She first worked as a protective services worker in California for 5 years, where she was particularly interested in teaching Incredible Years parenting classes to child-welfare clients. She then moved to Oregon and worked with DHS as a PS worker for 2 years. In the future she is interested in becoming a foster parent.

Chief Jim Holler served as Chief of Police for 16 years of the Liberty Township Police Department in Adams County. On December 1, 2007, he retired as the Chief of Police to continue consulting in the areas of child abuse.

In his 16 years as police chief, his responsibilities were not only to manage daily activities of the police department, but to investigate all types of crimes — from homicides to domestic violence to child sexual abuse cases. He specialized in crimes against children.

Chief Holler became an Internet Crimes Against Children Investigator, starting the first task force in Adams County in 2005. He has conducted proactive internet investigations — making multiple arrests for possession of child pornography and undercover chat-related arrests for soliciting sex from a minor.

He served as a fire marshal for Liberty Township for eight years, becoming the Township’s first fire/arsen investigator. Prior to Chief Holler’s law enforcement career, he retired as a paid firefighter from Montgomery County Maryland with 23 years of service.

Chief Holler is a nationally known speaker specializing in child abuse investigations, and is also a consultant for the Fox Valley Technical College in Appleton, WI, the Pennsylvania Child Welfare Training Program, University of Pittsburgh, School of Social Work, and the National Children’s Advocacy Center in Huntsville, Alabama.

Chief Holler also serves in various community roles, including as Board President of the Wetzel/Tyler County WV Children’s Advocacy Center; as the founder and past Board President of the Adams County Children’s Advocacy Center, Inc.; as Vice President of Survivors, Inc., a local domestic violence/rape crisis center; and as a member of the multi-disciplinary child abuse team, the child death review team, and many other child abuse and domestic violence focused committees within his community.

Jeremy C. Howell holds a bachelor’s degree in Political Science with a concentration in Civil Rights and Leadership from The University of Georgia in Athens, Georgia. He is currently a Special Agent and Crime Scene Specialist with the Georgia Bureau of Investigation. During his 18-year law enforcement career, he has also served as a police officer with the University of Georgia Police Department; a deputy sheriff with the Madison County (GA) Sheriff’s Office; a police officer, investigator, and chief with the Hoschton Police Department; and as an investigator with the Special Victims Unit (SVU) of the Western Judicial Circuit District Attorney’s Office in Athens, Georgia.

It is this well-rounded career experience that has provided him with a unique perspective regarding child abuse investigations and interagency partnerships.

Howell is a Georgia Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) Certified Instructor, and has received advanced training in homicide, sexual assault, and child abuse investigations, as well as in crime scene processing, bloodstain pattern analysis, shooting incident reconstruction, and alternate light source photography. He is also a graduate of the 10-week course at the National Forensic Academy — more commonly known as “The Body Farm” — in Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Kim Jacobowitz, LCSW received her MSW from the University of Washington with a specific focus on Children, Youth and Families. Ms. Jacobowitz has over 18 years of social work experience, with a significant emphasis in the areas of trauma and child maltreatment. She has practiced in residential, school, hospital, and legal settings as well as in private practice. Currently, Ms. Jacobowitz works at CARES Northwest, providing trauma-specific treatment to children and families. Ms. Jacobowitz provides trainings on trauma-specific therapies and sexual behavior problems in the Portland community.

Amber Kroeker, MPH, CPST is a child injury prevention expert with Randall Children’s Hospital at Legacy Emanuel. Her main work is applying behavioral economic theory in evaluating intervention program success with caregivers. As a behavior scientist, she works to understand parental choice regarding safety and how interventions may affect behavior change. Mrs. Kroeker trains injury prevention professionals in public health theory and applications of motivational interviewing. Mrs. Kroeker is a certified child passenger safety technician and has a Masters of Public Health from Oregon Health & Science University.

Dr. Cathleen Lang currently works at the Children’s Center in Clackamas as the Medical Clinic Director. She completed her Pediatric Residency and Child Abuse and Neglect Fellowship at the University of Texas Southwestern / Children’s Medical Center Dallas. She holds Board Certifications in both General Pediatrics and Child Abuse and Neglect. She practices as a Child Abuse Pediatrician, and her experience includes evaluating children for maltreatment in both the inpatient and outpatient settings.

For 25 years, Jan Edgar Langbein has been an activist in efforts to end violence against women. Currently, as CEO of Genesis Women’s Shelter Support, Ms. Langbein oversees Genesis’ internal and external operations as well as funding and community education.

Recognized as a national expert on the dynamics and effects of domestic violence, Ms. Langbein provides expert testimony in court cases and trains law enforcement and prosecutorial professionals to enhance their efforts to end violence against women. She conducts training, keynote, and workshop programs for numerous local and national conferences, social and civic...
Dr. Antoinette Laskey completed her medical degree at the University of Missouri-Columbia School of Medicine, followed by a pediatric residency at the University of Missouri-Columbia Hospitals and Clinics. She completed a research and clinical fellowship and a Master's in Public Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She spent 9 years at Indiana University and Riley Hospital for Children in Indianapolis, where she was the Fellowship Director for the Child Abuse Pediatrics program and the co-director of the Family Violence Institute. She received her MBA from the University of Utah David Eccles School of Business. She is currently a professor and division chief of the Center for Safe and Healthy Families at the University of Utah.

Dr. Laskey's clinical interests relate to the evaluation and management of the potentially abused child. Her research interests include cognitive errors in decision-making related to child maltreatment, child fatalities and prevention programs related to unsafe sleep practices and child abuse. Dr. Laskey enjoys teaching multidisciplinary audiences and presents on topics related to child maltreatment, cognitive errors and the investigation of child deaths.

Sue Lewis, LCSW has worked in the field of child abuse and neglect since the early 1990s, and as a forensic interviewer in Oregon since 1998. From 1998 until 2011, she was a member of the interviewing team at CARES Northwest. In 2011 she joined the Children’s Center in Clackamas County, where she has continued to interview children and adolescents on child abuse concerns. She also serves as the Interviewer Supervisor, providing clinical supervision for the forensic interviewers on staff. Sue has provided trainings both locally and nationally on a variety of topics related to forensic interviewing and child development. She also assisted in the development of the recent edition of the Oregon Interviewing Guidelines and is a faculty trainer for the NCA-approved Oregon Child Forensic Interviewer Training, which is offered statewide.

Timothy Lott is Director of the High-Tech Crime Training Services Program of SEARCH. He oversees a national program that provides expert technical assistance and training to local, state, and federal justice and public safety agencies on the role that digital evidence plays in criminal investigations. Mr. Lott teaches courses in digital forensics and mobile device investigations. Following more than six years in law enforcement working in probation, Mr. Lott joined SEARCH in 2010 as a Training Specialist; he was promoted to Director in 2011. He has widespread ICAC experience, and has helped conduct multijurisdictional investigations involving white-collar crime, organized crime, crimes against persons, and fraud when high-technology or identity theft is a factor.

Kelsey McKay, JD was a prosecutor in Travis County, Texas for 12 years. For six years she exclusively prosecuted strangulation-related crimes ranging from assault to sexual assault to capital murder. She has worked to strengthen how communities collaborate, investigate, treat and prosecute strangulation and intimate-partner cases. She works to help medical and non-medical experts better testify to juries regarding the evidence in strangulation and family violence cases. She works with law enforcement to create and implement the use of a Strangulation Supplement in the field — helping first responders be more investigative by carrying the knowledge and needs of a prosecutor into the field on every case. She trains and consults nationally for communities working towards similar implementations.

Dr. Heather McKeag was born and raised in Michigan and completed her pediatric residency in Oakland, CA, followed by a fellowship in child abuse pediatrics in Philadelphia, PA. She held a position as assistant professor of pediatrics at Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, MA, prior to joining the team at CARES NW — a regional child abuse assessment center in Oregon — in 2015. She continues to be inspired by the families she serves and the colleagues she is honored to work beside. The Pacific Northwest has provided her ample hiking and coastal trails, which she enjoys with her husband and their rescue pup.

After a 12-year career in business advising with Ernst & Young and six years in student ministry, Chris McKenna is now the Educational Resource Manager for Covenant Eyes, an Internet Safety and Accountability Company. In 2015, he created www.protectyoungeyes.com as a way to equip and encourage parents and students to responsibly use technology. He tells a compelling story explaining why he so strongly desires to protect kids and teens from internet dangers. In a world where technology is native to our kids, Chris has done hundreds of hours of research in order to level the playing field for parents and to inform teens of the risks of using the internet recklessly. Chris presents to teens and parents throughout the Midwest, and is regularly featured on local media outlets for his research.

Chris Newlin, MS, LPC is the Executive Director of the National Children’s Advocacy Center, where he is responsible for providing leadership and management of the NCAC and participating in national and international training and leadership activities regarding the protection of children. The NCAC was the first Child Advocacy Center in the world, and continues to provide prevention and intervention services for child abuse in Huntsville/Madison County, AL. The National Children’s Advocacy Center also houses the NCAC Training Center, the Southern Regional Children’s Advocacy Center, the NCAC Virtual Training Center, and the Child Abuse Library Online (CALO). The NCAC is a past multi-year winner of the Better Business Bureau’s Torch Award for Workplace Ethics, the 2012 Huntsville/Madison County Chamber of Commerce Non-Profit of the Year, and the 2016 Federal Bureau of Investigation Director’s Community Leadership Award. The NCAC is also a Private Sector Member of the Virtual Global Taskforce. Chris has provided training in more than 20 countries throughout the world at numerous international conferences, and also provides technical assistance on a regular basis to professionals working to develop Children’s Advocacy Centers throughout the world. Chris graduated from Hendrix College, the University of Central Arkansas, and the Harvard Business School Executive Education Program.

Jennifer Newman is the Senior Program Strategist for NCMEC’s Child Victim Identification Program (CVIP). Ms. Newman joined NCMEC in 2001, and has spent the past 15 years working on cases, programs, issues and policies in the fight against the sexual exploitation of children. In 2002, Jennifer assisted in broadening the role of the Exploited Children Division (ECD) with the creation, development and management of CVIP. In 2012, Ms. Newman moved into her current role, where she now works to help expand and improve the daily processes within CVIP as well as providing assistance, input and implementation of special projects and policy development. For over 12 years, Jennifer has presented at various national, local and international training programs and conferences related to the sexual exploitation of children.

Micah D. Persons has 20 years of law enforcement experience. He began his police career with the Portland Police Bureau, where he served as a patrol officer and as a narcotics investigator assigned to the Drugs and Vice Division. Since 2006, Micah has worked for the Oregon Department of Justice as a Special Agent assigned to the Internet Crimes Against Children Taskforce. Micah has been involved in hundreds of investigations involving the sexual exploitation of children via the internet, and provides internet safety and investigative training throughout the state.

Dan Powers, ACSW, LCSW is a clinical social worker and currently serves as Senior Vice President and Clinical Director for Children’s Advocacy Center of Collin County in Plano, Texas. He supervises a staff of 22 therapists and clinical interns, providing no-cost services to victims of child abuse and family violence as well as their non-offending family members. As Senior VP, he is responsible for clinical operations and program development as well as directing the Advocacy Center’s clinical internship and training program. Dan has over 25 years of experience working within the field of child abuse, sex offenders and family violence. He frequently testifies as an expert witness in state and federal courts. He has also testified on several occasions before Texas legislative committees. He has been appointed by the governor on two occasions to state agency boards, and is currently the Vice Chair of the Texas Children’s Justice Act Task Force. Dan has made numerous presentations at major national and regional conferences on the sexual victimization of children, sex offenders, and the multidisciplinary response to child abuse. He is best known for his spirited presentations on wellness and survival for child abuse and family violence professionals. Dan lives in Texas with his wife and two sons.

Sally K. Sheppard holds a Bachelor’s in Sociology with a concentration in Criminology and Social Control from Appalachian State University in North Carolina. Her interest in the field of child abuse and sexual assault began when she became an investigator for a District Attorney’s Office. While doing this work, Sally began to learn more about those that provided interventions for survivors of child abuse and sexual assault. She decided to attend The University of Georgia to receive her Masters from the School of Social Work to begin working directly with victims of child abuse. Sally began by counseling child survivors of sexual abuse and moved into forensically interviewing child victims of abuse during criminal investigations. After many forensic interviews and a child of her own, Sally decided to take on a new challenge of leading an agency that provides services to survivors of child abuse and sexual assault by becoming the Executive Director of The Cottage. Sexual Assault Center & Children’s Advocacy Center in November of 2007. Sally continues to enjoy leading this agency — and the state of Georgia — in assisting victims of child abuse and sexual assault in the investigative, prosecution and healing process.

Dr. Sue Skinner is a child abuse pediatrician at the Children’s Center of Clackamas County, and has been working in the field of child abuse and neglect for 21 years. She is board-certified in both general pediatrics and child abuse pediatrics, and is a member of the American Academy of Pediatrics as well as APSAC. Dr. Skinner has lectured both locally and nationally on various issues related to child abuse; she has also assisted in the development of guidelines and training modules for medical providers in the state of Oregon. She has a particular interest in physical abuse of school-aged children, physical and environmental neglect, drug-endangered children, and the medical evaluation of adolescents.

Curtis St. Denis has a Master’s Degree in Psychology Counseling. He has worked in forensic psychology for over 34 years, including work in three prisons and in community corrections. He has specialized in work with mentally ill, sexually and domestically violent and psychopathic offenders. He currently works for the Marion County Sheriff’s Office and is in private practice at Cedar Counseling Center. He also provides training to law enforcement on topics that include personality disorders, coexisting conditions, psychopathy, resiliency for first responders, and autism spectrum disorders.
Jane Straub is the Victim Assistance Specialist for the Jacob Wetterling Resource Center (JWRC), a program of Gundersen National Child Protection Training Center (GNCPTC). Jane has been working in the violence prevention and intervention field for over 18 years. She has had the opportunity to work with survivors of all ages of abuse as well as offenders of violence. In addition to providing advocacy and support to victims and families, Jane has been able to educate the community on topics including domestic abuse, sexual violence, stalking, trafficking, bullying/cyberbullying, reproductive coercion and the impact of trauma (Ace Study). One of Jane’s goals is to work with personnel from a variety of fields — such as law enforcement, the court system, chemical health, mental health, education, the medical community and business — to connect the dots of risk and prevention, providing services and hope for our children and families.

Deputy Chief Michael Sullivan is a 36-year veteran of law enforcement and holds a Bachelor’s in Law Enforcement Administration from Western Illinois University. He retired as the Deputy Chief of the Investigations Division for the Illinois Attorney General’s Office and the ICAC Task Force Commander.

Deputy Chief Sullivan served as a member of state and federal narcotics task forces, and was a member of the DuPage County, Illinois Major Crimes Task Force. He has been a member of the ICAC Advisory Board, a Co-Chair of the ICAC Emerging Technology Group, a member of the National Child Exploitation Strategy Committee, and a member of the National ICAC Data Network Committee.

Deputy Chief Sullivan has been or currently is a member of the teaching faculty at North East Multi-Regional Training, The College of DuPage, The Suburban Law Enforcement Academy, and for the Fox Valley Technical College/OJJD. Deputy Chief Sullivan has also been a guest lecturer for Assistant United States Attorneys at the Department Of Justice, Office of Legal Education Training Center in Glyco, South Carolina; Governors State University; Prairie State College; and the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center in Glyco, Georgia. He is also part of the adjunct faculty at Northwestern University’s Center for Public Safety. He is a graduate of the Northwestern School of Police Staff and Command Class #324. Deputy Chief Sullivan is the author of two books, Safety Monitor and Online Predators, which focus on the use of computers to victimize children.

As the task force commander of the Illinois Attorney General’s Internet Crimes against Children task force, he has created training classes for the investigation of child exploitation, and has delivered that training to local, state and federal law enforcement officers and prosecutors. Deputy Chief Sullivan has received numerous awards for his work — including the Medal of Valor, the Meritorious Service Medal, and The Illinois Bar Association’s Law Enforcement Official of the Year.

Sarah Taggart, MPA, RYT is a child abuse prevention specialist at the Children’s Center, the designated medical assessment center serving Clackamas County, Oregon. She is a former teacher, education policy and program analyst, and current parent of two teenagers. Her work focuses on the intersection between personal and social change created through multi-disciplinary, collaborative and transformative efforts in the U.S. and Africa. Sara leads the Children’s Center’s Ford Family Foundation-funded Stewards of Children Initiative, which is designed to help communities prevent child sexual abuse and create new norms for keeping children safe. Sara also teaches yoga and mindfulness to young adults.

Eric Tonsfeldt has been an appointed Deputy Medical Examiner for Clackamas and Multnomah Counties since 2011 — leaving a career in cardiovascular and behavioral neuroscience research in favor of medicolegal death investigation. Additionally, he is a consulting Forensic Entomologist for the Oregon State Medical Examiner’s Office and Eugene Police Department, and has assisted the Oregon State Forensic Anthropologist since 2006. He is a Cancer, and enjoys candlelit dinners, long walks on the beach, and pursuing a graduate degree in medical anthropology with glacial urgency.

Elizabeth Tow serves as the Program Manager at The Innocent Justice Foundation (TJF) where she works in collaboration with the CEO/Program Director to oversee the SHIFT program, which entails: needs assessment; program design and delivery; developing presentations and resource materials; trainer and consultant supervision; and managing day-to-day operations of the SHIFT program. She began working in the criminal justice profession in 2005 as a public safety dispatcher in California and Montana, and then worked as a High-Tech Crime Training Specialist at SEARCH from 2010-15. Ms. Tow has a Master’s in Forensic Psychology and a B.A. in Criminal Justice Management.

Sr. Deputy District Attorney JR Ujifusa has been working on human trafficking crimes and issues for the last eight years, and is also a Special Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Oregon, focusing on federal human trafficking crimes. He supervises the Multnomah County District Attorney’s Human Trafficking Team, which oversees the Prostitution Coordination Team, the Sex Buyers Accountability and Diversion Program, the First Offender Program, the Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children Law Enforcement group, and the National Sex Trafficking Law Enforcement ListServ, and is the primary prosecutor for all felony prostitution and human trafficking cases within Multnomah County. He has been a Deputy District Attorney since 2005, and has also prosecuted drug crimes, felony property crimes, violent crimes, sexual assaults, domestic-violence-related crimes, homicides, and gang-related crimes.

Emily Vacher joined Facebook in 2011, and is currently a Director with Facebook’s Trust & Safety team. Emily is responsible for law enforcement outreach, global safety initiatives, safety education, and security policy matters. She is currently focusing on global terrorism incident response, and she created and manages Facebook’s AMBER Alert program. Emily works extensively with the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) and serves as a member of NCMEC’s Team ADAM / Project Alert and as a member of NCMEC’s Board of Directors. Before she joined Facebook, Emily was a Special Agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for more than a decade, specializing in crimes against children. She was a supervisor in CID (Undercover & Sensitive Operations Unit), a member of the FBI’s Child Abduction Rapid Deployment (CARD) Team and the Operational Medicine (OpMED) Team, and was an FBI legal advisor. Emily holds a BS from Cornell University, an MS from Syracuse University, an MPA from the Maxwell School of Citizenship & Public Affairs and a J.D. from Syracuse University College of Law.

Thomas J. Valvano, MD, JD is the Medical Director of the Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect (SCAN) Program at Doernbecher Children’s Hospital and a Clinical Associate Professor of Pediatrics at Oregon Health & Science University. He is also a medical examiner at CARES Northwest. Dr. Valvano received his Medical Degree from the University of Rochester School Of Medicine in Rochester, NY. He also holds a JD (Doctor of Jurisprudence) from Northeastern University and a J.D. from the law is the...
University School of Law in Boston, MA. He completed his residency in Pediatrics and a Fellowship in Child Abuse Pediatrics at Children’s Memorial Hospital in Chicago. He is certified by the American Board of Pediatrics in Pediatrics and Child Abuse Pediatrics.

Lauren Wagner is a High-Tech Crime Training Specialist in the High-Tech Crime Training Services department of SEARCH, where she performs tasks related to training local, state and federal agencies on computer technology issues with criminal justice applications. She is a recognized national expert on the role that social networking websites can play in law enforcement investigations, and has authored numerous white papers for investigators. Ms. Wagner routinely provides technical assistance to law enforcement agencies in active cases. She prepares training materials, teaches SEARCH investigative courses, and speaks at conferences throughout the U.S. Ms. Wagner is an ICI-certified instructor, and received a 2009 “Excellence in Training” award from California POST.

Dr. Catherine Y.H. Wagoner is currently employed with Legacy Health Systems as a Child Abuse Pediatrician with CARES Northwest. She is also a general pediatrician who practices in the hospital and newborn care setting. She is an Oregon native and just recently returned to the Portland area after a nearly 20-year detour that included pediatric training in Honolulu and a general pediatrics career in Reno, Nevada. Dr. Wagoner has been practicing in the area of child abuse and neglect for the past 8 years, and was board-certified in this subspecialty in 2013. Her greatest career accomplishment is continuing to be able to wear so many practice hats between general pediatrics and child-abuse pediatrics.

Patty Wetterling is the mother of Jacob Wetterling, who was abducted at the age of 11 by a masked gunman on October 22, 1989, near his home in St. Joseph, Minnesota. Following a nearly 27-year search, Jacob’s kidnapper and murderer confessed — and the truth about what happened that night was finally revealed. Patty has become a nationally recognized educator on the issues of child abduction and sexual exploitation of children. Fighting for the safety of all children, Patty and her husband Jerry co-founded the Jacob Wetterling Foundation (now the Jacob Wetterling Resource Center, a part of Gundersen Health Systems) to educate communities about child safety issues in order to prevent child exploitation and abductions.

Co-Founder and Past Director of Team H.O.P.E., a national support group for families of missing children, Patty is also a founding member and past president of the Association of Missing and Exploited Children’s Organizations (AMECO) and immediate past Chair of the Board of Directors for the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. She has co-authored two books, When Your Child is Missing: A Family Survival Guide along with four other families, and Perspectives on Missing Persons Cases, released in the fall of 2015.

Patty was instrumental in the passage of the Jacob Wetterling Crimes Against Children Sex Offender Registration Act, on the state level and as part of the 1994 Federal Crime Bill. She was instrumental in establishing the statewide AMBER Plan in Minnesota, and was a keynote speaker for the very first AMBER Plan training in Dallas, Texas. Patty has presented at four Missing Children’s Day Ceremonies in Washington, D.C. with John Walsh and Attorneys General Janet Reno, John Ashcroft, Eric Holder, and Loretta Lynch. Patty served on a panel at the very first White House Conference on Missing, Exploited, and Runaway Children in October 2002, sponsored by President George and First Lady Laura Bush.

Currently, Patty presents Victim Impact sessions for law enforcement training programs (including Investigative Strategies for Child Abduction Cases) and Amber Alert and Technical Assistance trainings. She is called on frequently as an independent consultant, and joined the Gundersen NCPTC Speakers Bureau in 2015. Although she has become a highly recognized child advocate, Patty has never given up hope. She often says, “I’m just Jacob’s mom — trying to fight for the rights of children to grow up safe and to be able to follow their dreams.”

Mark Wynn is a retired 21-year member of the Metropolitan Police Department of Nashville, having served as Lieutenant to the Domestic Violence Division. He was a member of the Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) Team for 15 years and a recipient of 121 commendations and 51 awards and certificates, including the 1998 Nashvillian of the Year Award and the National Improvement of Justice Award.

He recently received the 2012 Family Justice Center Alliance Lifetime Achievement Award. In 2011 he was awarded the “Visionary Award” by End Violence Against Women International and the Distinguished Faculty Award by the National District Attorney’s Association.

In 2013, he was selected to the Executive Committee of the Nashville Davidson County Domestic Violence Safety and Accountability Assessment — Office of the Mayor. He was selected in 1995 as one of the top-10 police officers in the United States by the International Association of Chief’s of Police and Parade Magazine.

He is a 1994 Graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy — Session 178.

In October 1995, Lt. Wynn was invited to the White House by President Clinton to deliver a speech on strategies to prevent domestic violence in the United States. In April 1993, Lt. Wynn was called to testify before Congress for the Energy and Commerce Committee — Subcommittee on Health and Environment. He spoke on the public-health issue of violence in the family. In June 1994, he testified a second time before Congress, going before the House of Representatives’ Committee on the Judiciary on the positive effects on mandatory arrest in incidents of family violence. Wynn’s experience as a victim in his own home and a victim of a system that did not intervene has resulted in his passion to tirelessly address the need for a collaborative approach to domestic violence. Wynn is currently a much-sought-after trainer, advisor and consultant on effective domestic-violence intervention, both nationally and internationally.

Dr. Chris Young attended medical school in Houston, Texas at the University of Texas before his residency in Pathology at OHSU in Portland, Oregon. He specialized in forensic pathology, with training at the Southwestern Institute of Forensic Sciences fellowship in Dallas, Texas. He has served as a forensic pathologist for the Oregon State Medical Examiner’s Office since 2004, and has participated in the Clackamas Child Fatality Review during this time. He enjoys candlelit walks and long dinners on the beach.
